THE MOST REVEREND JAMES J. KEANE, D. D.
Archbishop of Dubuque

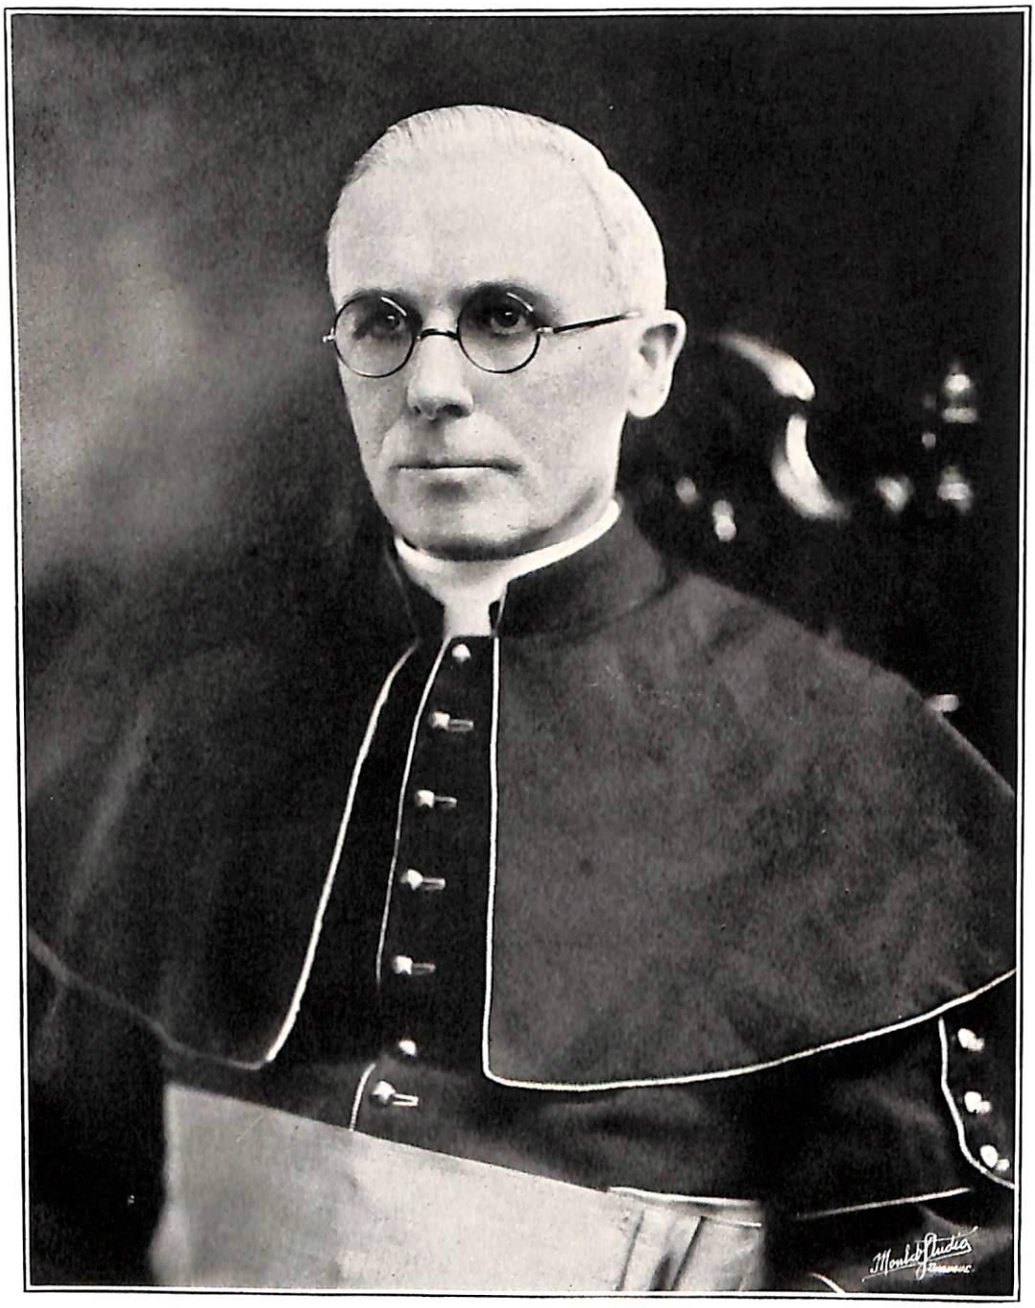

Dedication

To Our Archbishop, the Most Reverend James J. Keane, D. D., who for twenty-five fruitful years has labored as the faithful shepherd of Christ, of which seventeen were spent as the devoted benefactor of our Alma Mater, we the class of 1928, as a mark of our esteem upon his silver jubilee, lovingly dedicate this work of our hearts and hands.

And it is our earnest prayer that throughout the years, in which we hope that this story of a passing season will grow more precious in our sight, he too may look with increasing joy upon the ripening fruits of a continued ministry.

President of Columbia College

Foreword

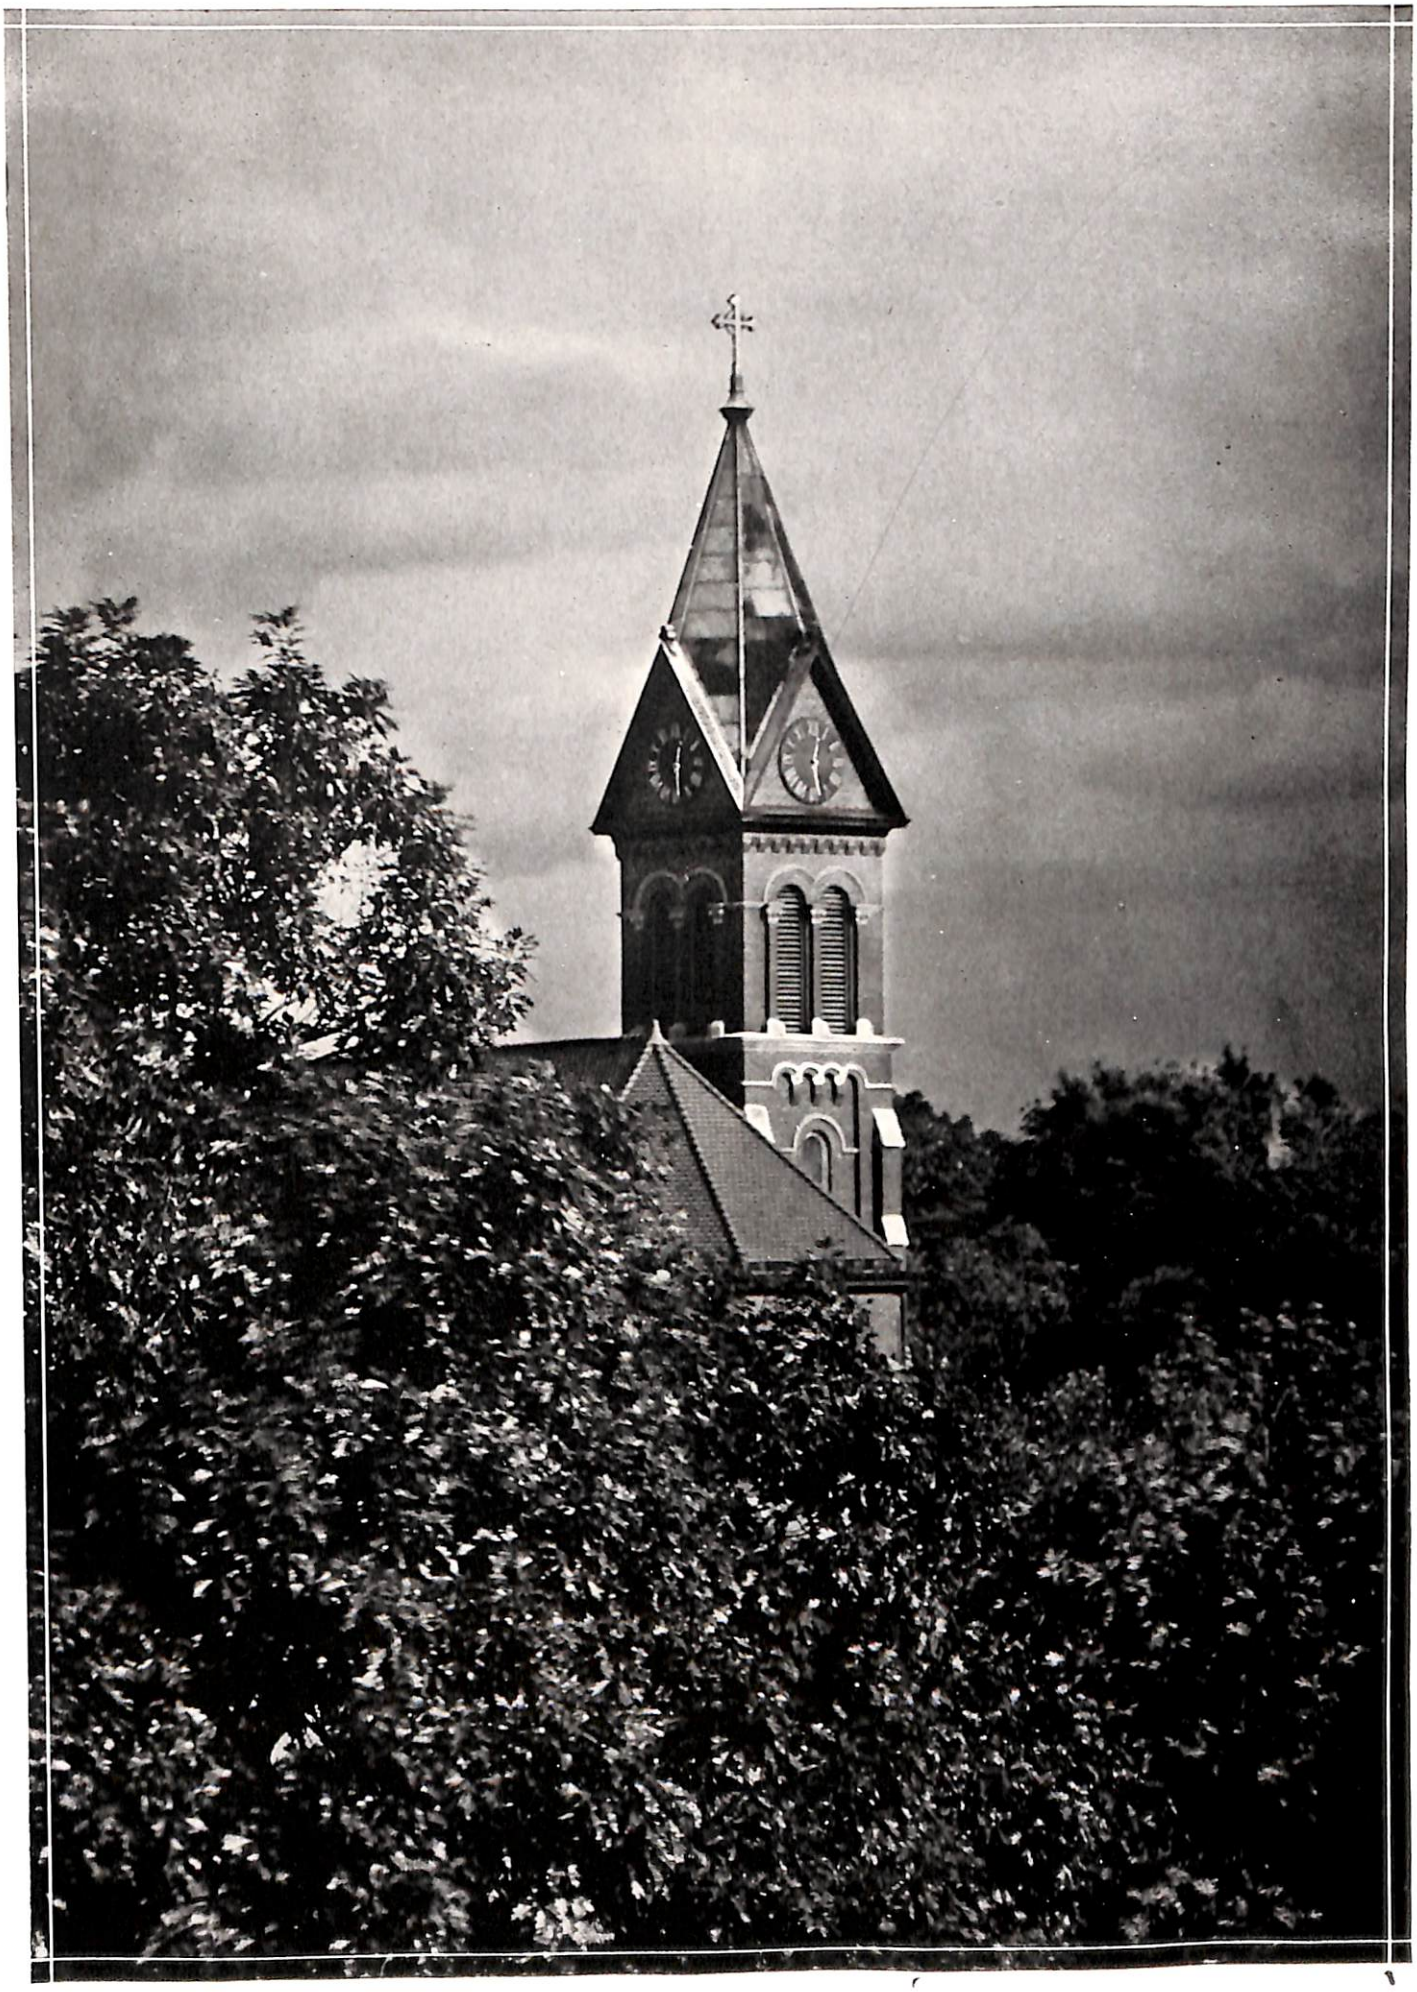

IN making this book, we have sought the spirit of the medieval illuminer of manuscripts or of the Gothic sculptor; the spirit of patient care and of sincere love for a work undertaken with a higher purpose than the perfection of the work itself.

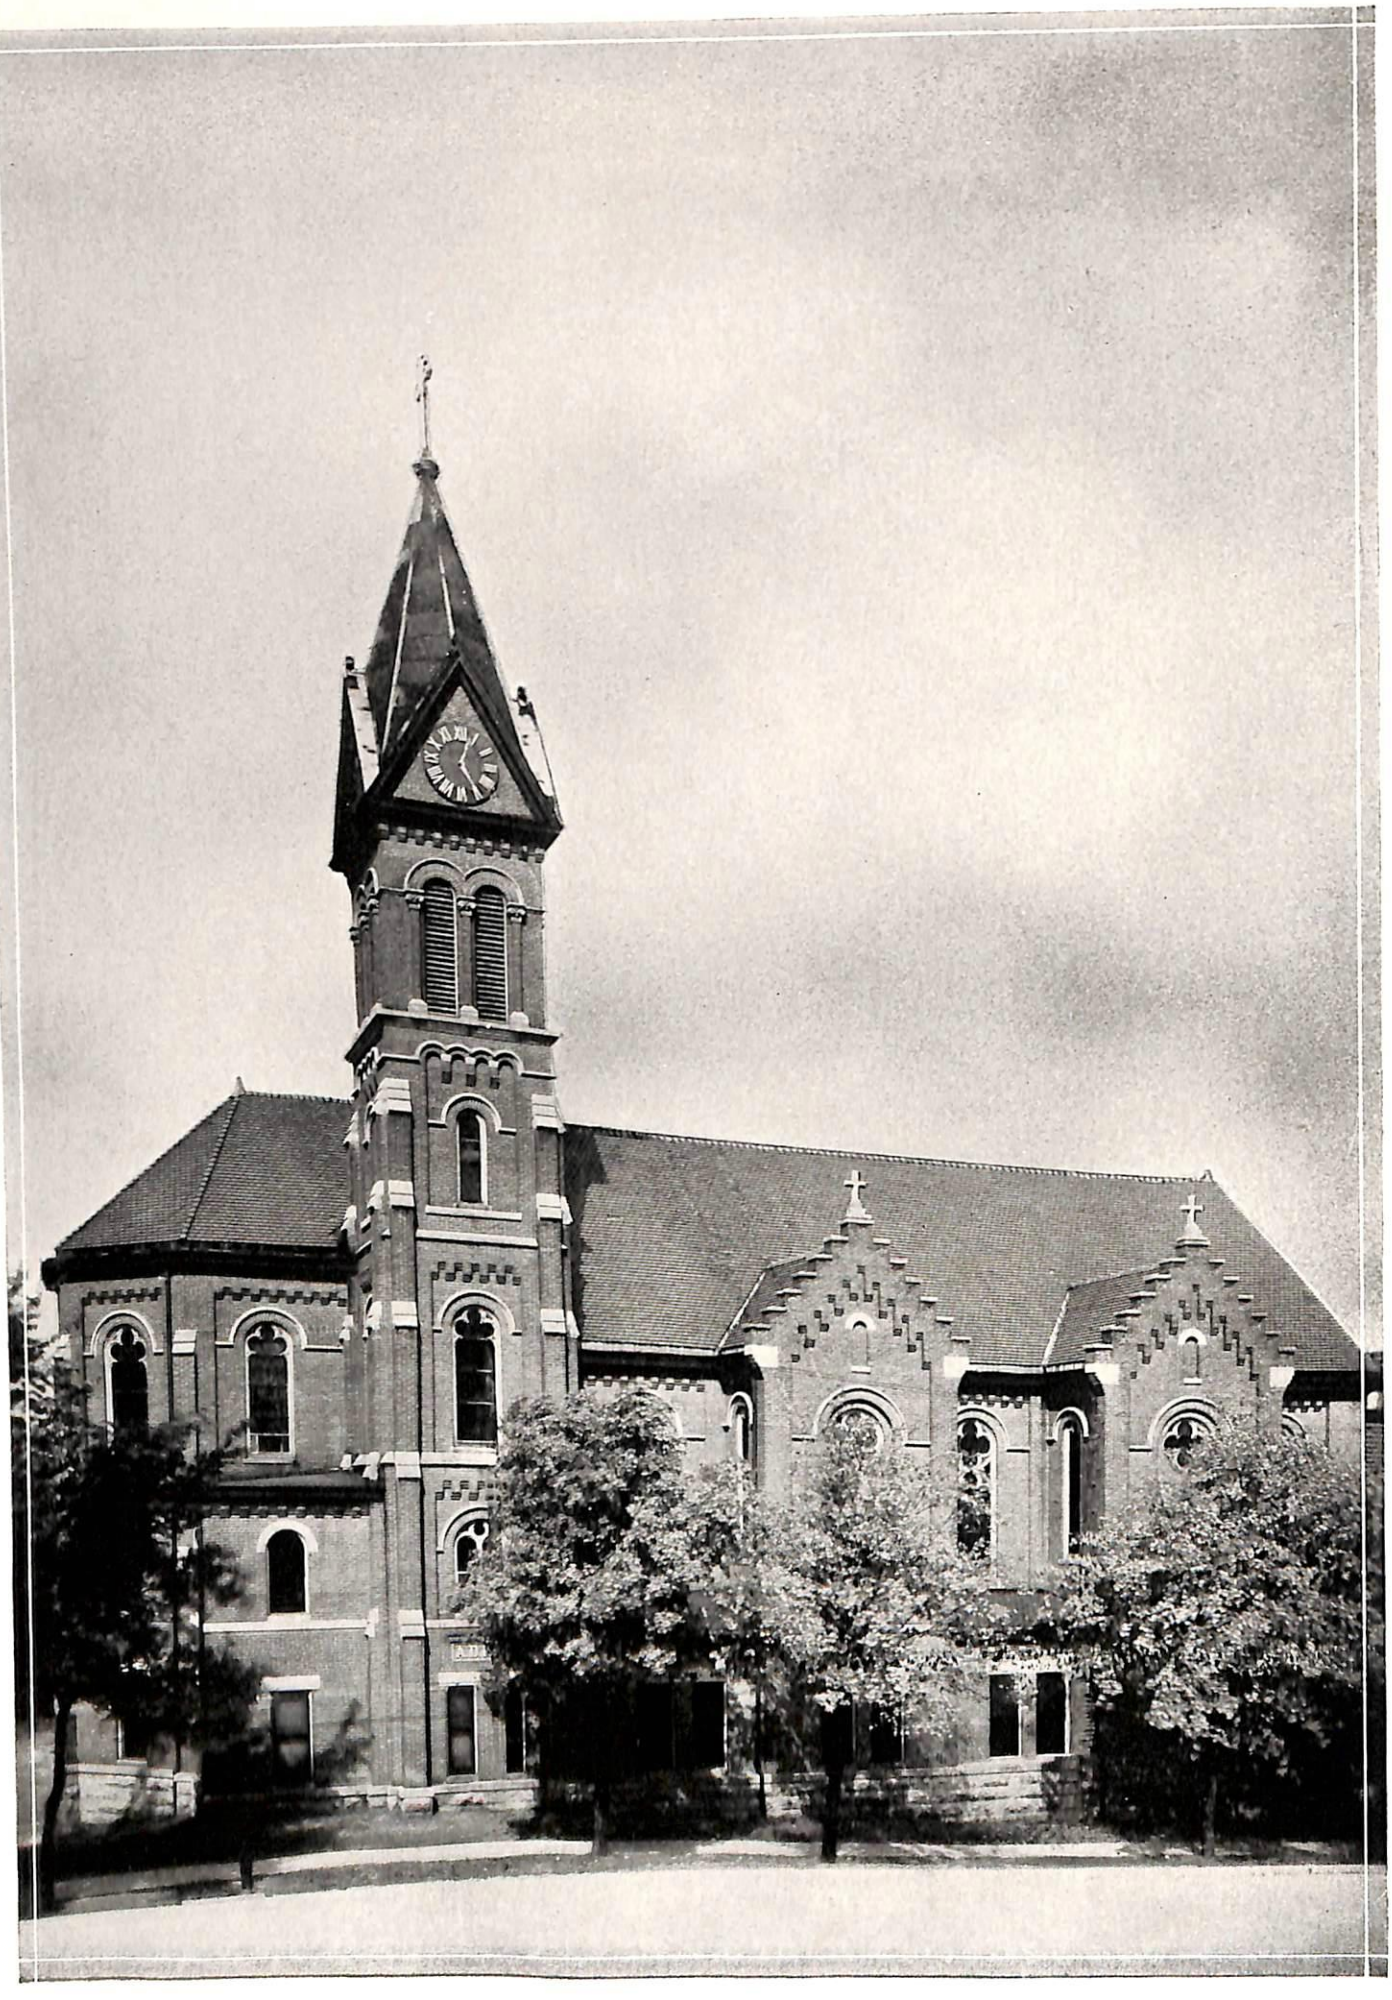

We have fashioned the deeds of the year into this volume, to establish them in the minds of you who once wrought and now read; but our higher purpose has been the honor of Columbia, which we hope to augment by a faithful record of the pleasant and inspiring life that she has bestowed upon us, a life of which we may in a far time voice the words of Hamlet, "What a treasure had'st thou!"

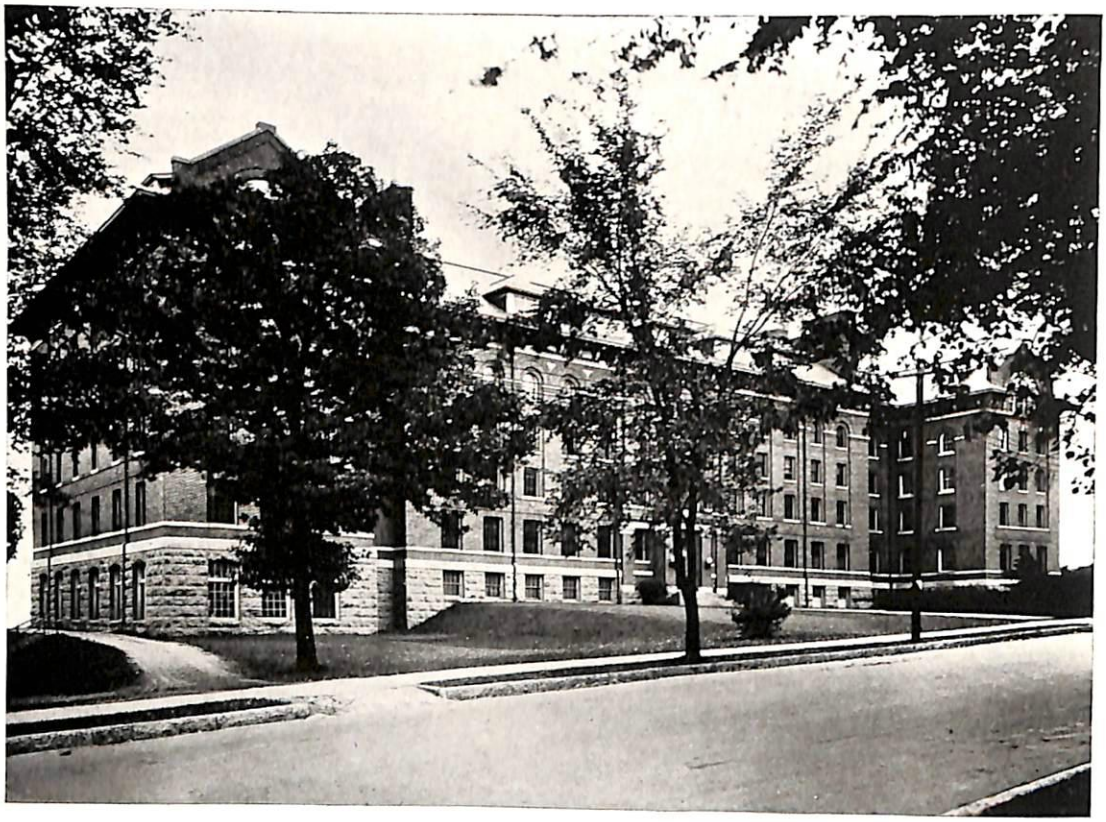

CHAPTERS

The Setting
The Masters
The Scholars
Guild and Brotherhood
Tilt and Tournament
Jest and Fancy
The Academy

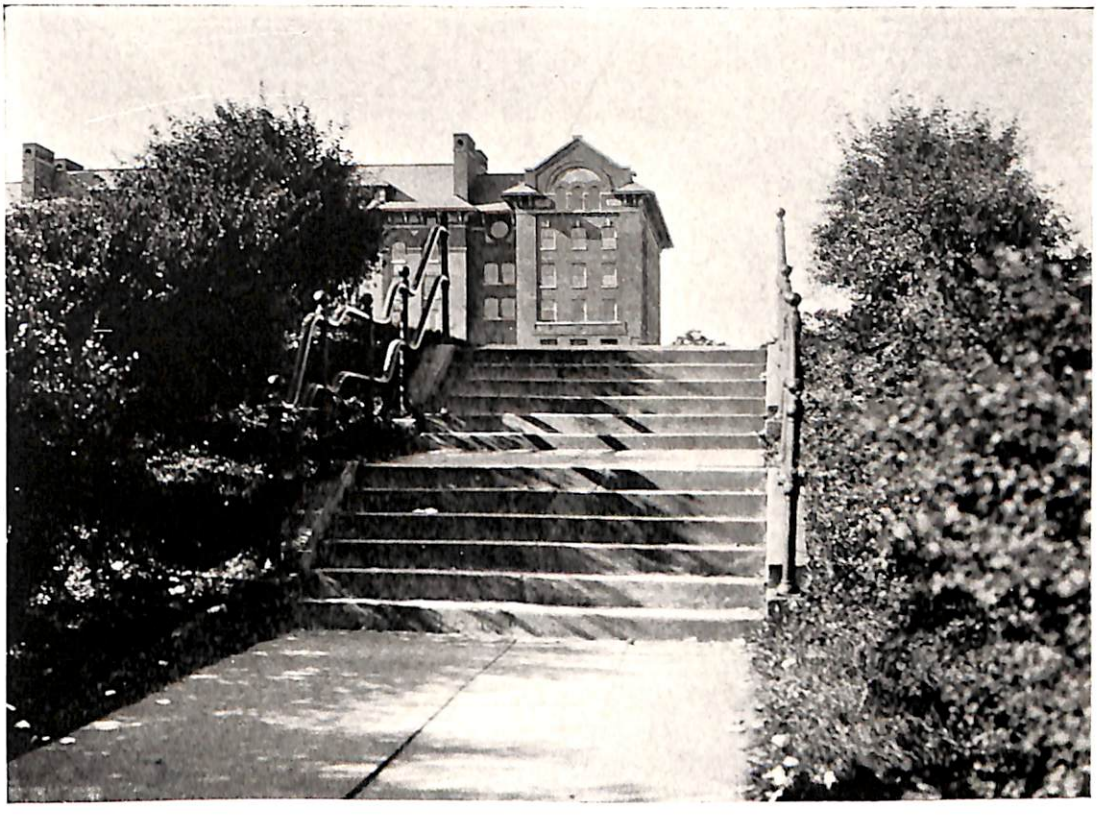

"As this temple waxes,
The inward service of the mind and soul
Grows wide withal."

LORAS HALL

"A station like the herald Mercury
New-lighted on a heaven-kissing hill!"

THE STEPS

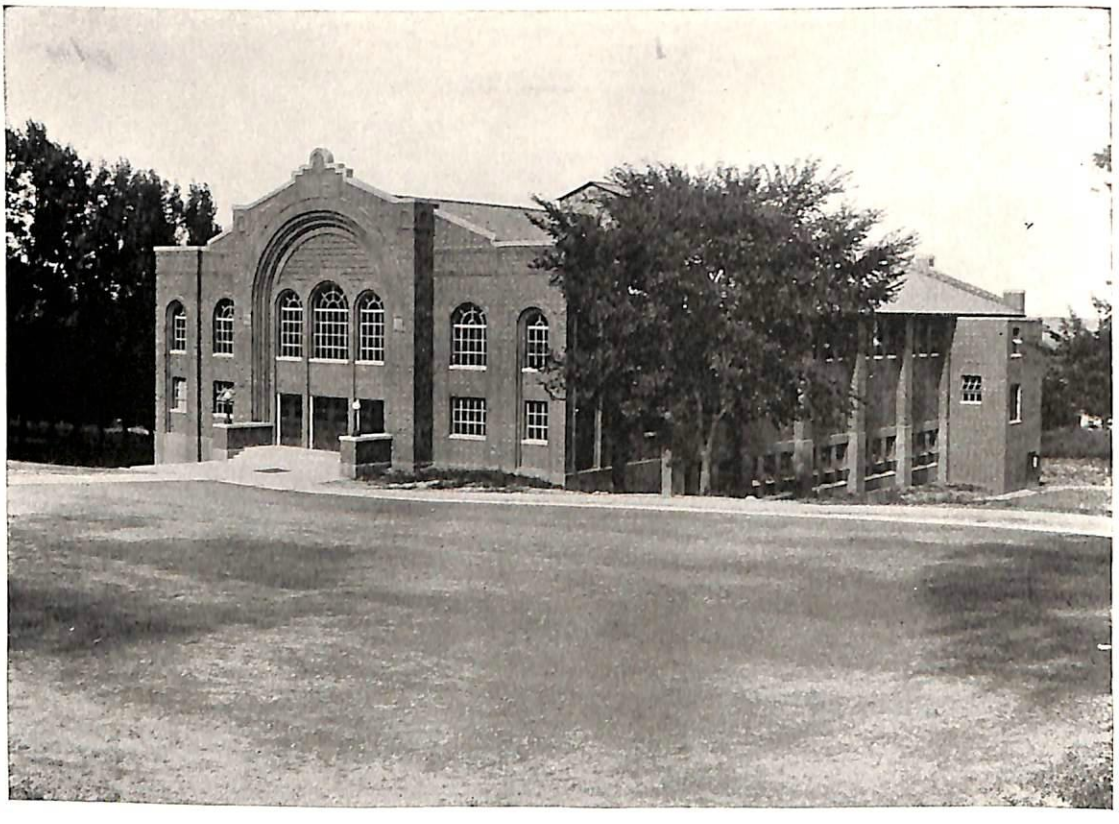

"If circumstances lead me, I will find
Where truth is hid, though it were hid indeed
Within the centre."

SCIENCE HALL

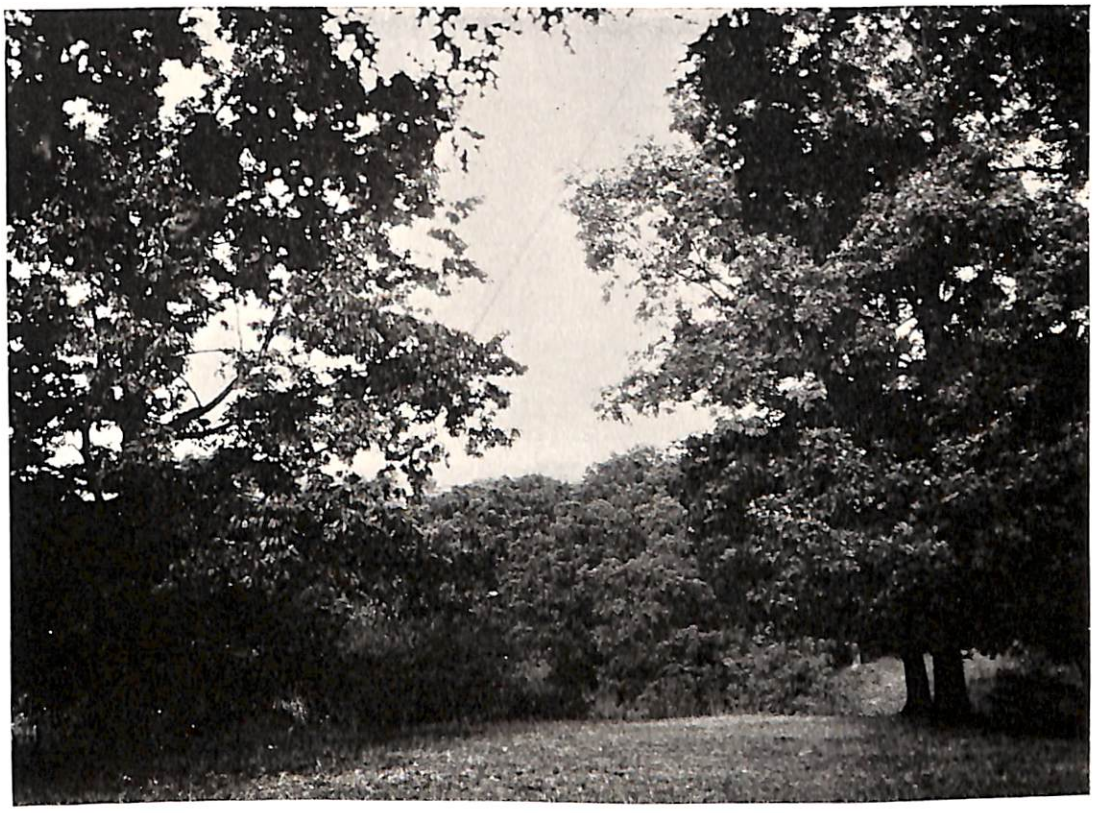

"This goodly frame, the earth, this most excellent canopy, the air, this brave o'er-hanging firmament!"

THE POPLARS

"I have been in continual practice: I shall win at the odds."

THE GYMNASIUM

"My spirits grow dull, and feign I would beguile
The tedious day with sleep."

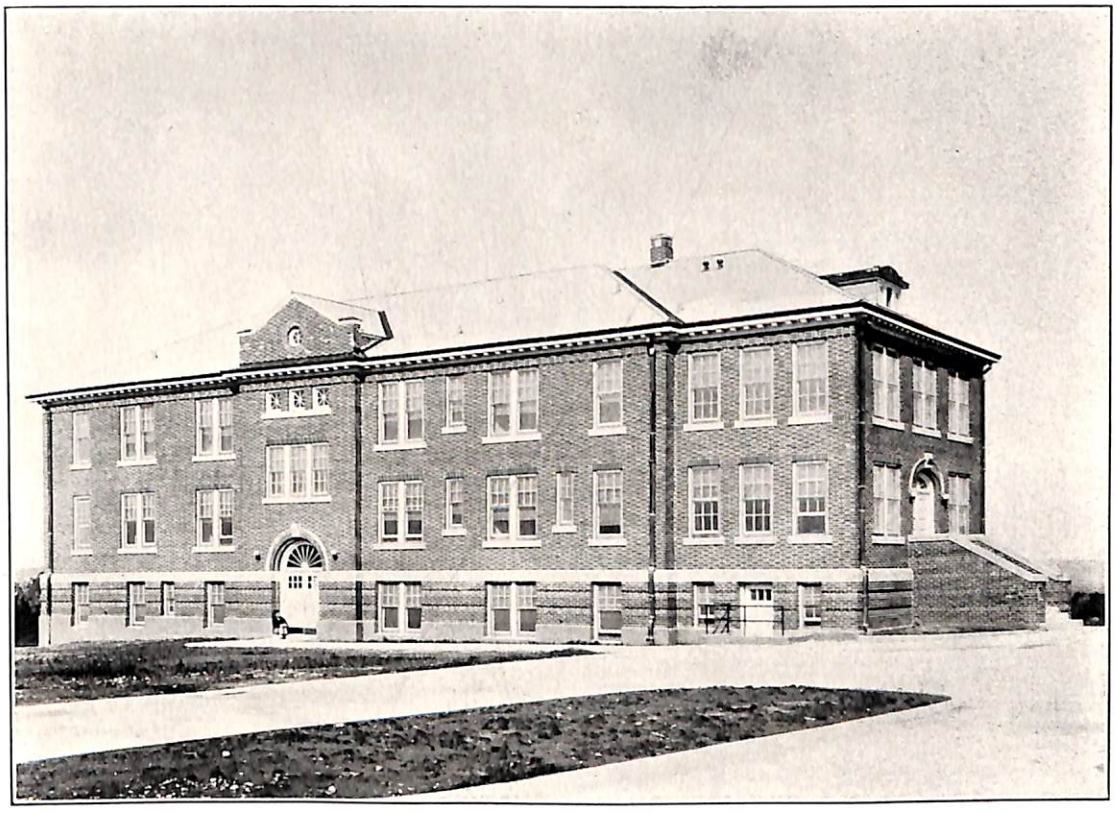

THE OAKS

"Where be your gibes now? your gambols? your songs? your flashes of merriment, that were wont to set the table on a roar?"

ST. FRANCIS HALL

"Diseases desperate grown
By desperate appliance are reliev'd."

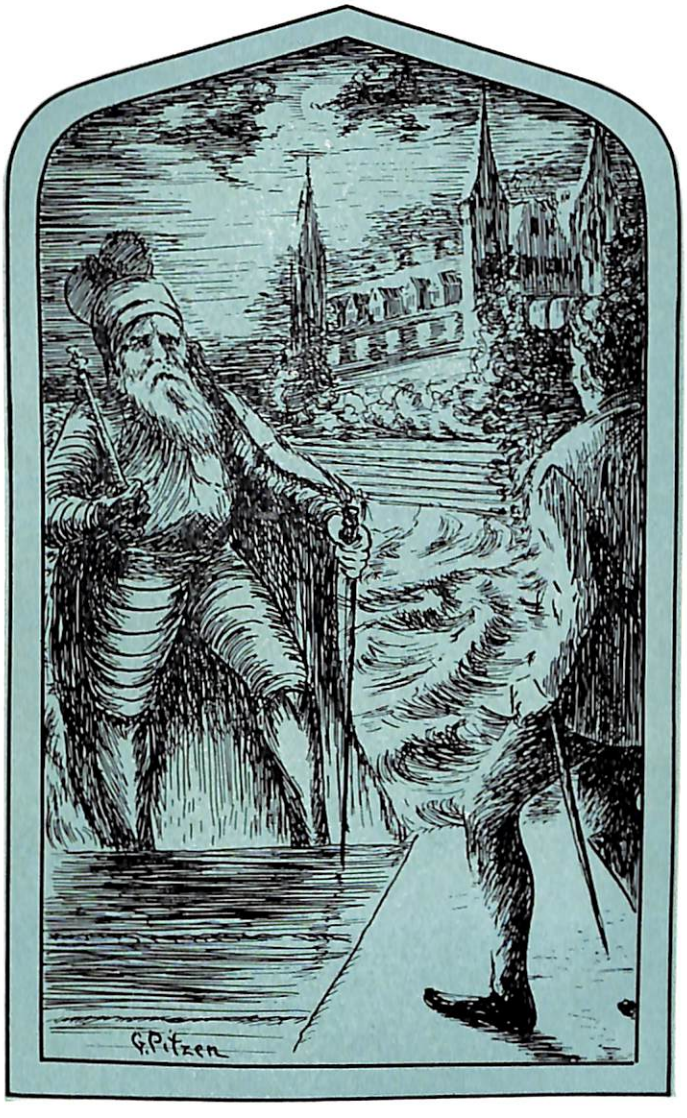

THE INFIRMARY

"Where every god did seem to set his seal!"

COLUMBIA

The Masters

"Yea, from the table of my memory
I'll wipe away all trivial fond records,
And thy commandment all alone shall live
Within the book and volume of my brain."

The Scholars

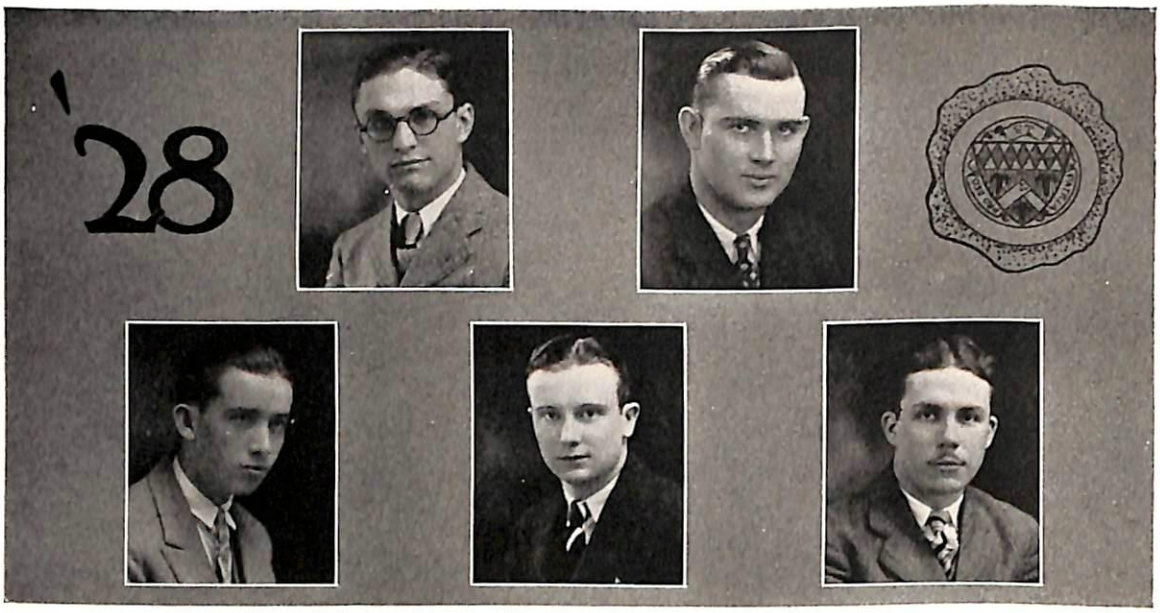

"The courtier's, soldier's, scholar's eye, tongue, sword:
The expectancy and rose of the fair state,
The glass of fashion and the mould of form,
The observ'd of all observers!"

Seniors

"To thine own self be true;
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

The History of the Senior Class

IN the fair field of our College-days, thrice and once again the unvarying scythe of Time has swung, at every stroke garnering a wealthy sheaf of deeds full of worthy of record here. At matriculation the class numbered one hundred and seven; and, the mummery of initiation over, entered upon the charmed life which forty of us have even until now continued to bear. After the two formative years, we came at last to our collegiate majority, when, having put on the robe of the Philosopher, we feasted with our elder friends in the Forum. Our Junior officers were Halbach, Koob, Donohue, and Noonan. And on the ruling committee of the Forum were Halbach and Geelan, as Vice-President and Secretary, and Dailey and Mulcahy. As President of the Forum during this Senior year, Russell was elected, with Becker and Mulcahy as associates on the Programme committee. The Senior class officers are Halbach, President; Koob, Vice-President; Geelan, Secretary; Zak, Valedictorian; and Tracy, Historian.

Throughout its history, the Class has been prominent in all collegiate activities,—social, intellectual, and athletic. In the matter of Clubs and Contests, the limitation of space forbids more than the mention here of the men who have held offices in the one, or have secured places in the other.

First, with respect to the Clubs, and more particularly with those the most officially connected with the College. The Vested Choir, doubtless the most notable organization in the College, numbers among its officers Halbach, Schaefer, Mulcahy, and Tracy. The Dramatic Club has had the best services of Farnan, Halbach, Dietz, Mulcahy, Zak, Donohue, Carl and Leo Schumacher, Regan, Becker, and Russell. Tracy has been the Band's Librarian and assistant Director, and Hlubek its Custodian. The editor-ship of the College Spokesman has been borne by Donohue and Tracy; and on the contributing staff of that periodical are the names of Becker, Geiger, Syrovy, Halbach; and on the business staff, those of Butler, Dietz, Mullan, Dailey, and Geelan. On the Purgold staff, in earlier years, Donohue, Syrovy, Becker, and Mulcahy have served as contributing editors, and Dietz and Geelan as assistant business-managers. Donohue has been editor of the Lorian; and Becker, Mulcahy, Syrovy, Tracy, Halbach, Geiger, and Chihak have contributed to its columns.

Of the remaining societies, six active Clubs count Seniors among their officers. Chihak is secretary of the Mathematics Club. Le Cercle Français, re-organized this year after a brief term of inactivity, has for its leaders Donohue, Mullan, and Tracy. Members of the Class have held positions of honor in three religious societies of the Hall: in the Crusaders, the Day-student Sodality, Koob and Noonan; in the Acolythical Society, Halbach, Becker, Regan, and Carl Schumacher; and in the Propagation of the Faith Unit, Mulcahy and Schwind. It seems fitting here to note that Class-men have been in the past members of Clubs that are now inactive; the Classical Club, the Economics Round-Table, and the Academy of History.

In the Contests, Donohue early established his leadership, when, in Sophomore year, he won gold medals in Poetry, Essay, and Short-Story. In addition to these awards, he last year won the national prize in an essay contest conducted by the Illinois Central Railroad. Further, he has placed in Oratory, Extempore Speaking, and French Elocution.

Five other Class-men have ranked in various Contests. Halbach has won first in Oratory, Tracy in Poetry, and Zak in Extempore Speaking. Syrovy placed in Short-Story, and Becker and Halbach in Extempore Speaking and German Elocution. And last, the Varsity Debating teams included Donohue, Geiger, Zak, and Tracy.

Thus ends the record of the first, that might be called the scholastic, part of this history. Whence, we pass now to the chronicle of the other, the athletic, feats of Class-men.

The Class has contributed to the galaxy of Columbian athletic fame, stars more numerous and of greater magnitude than has any other class for a goodly period of time. Words and space are lacking, wherewith to give the athletes of the Class the laudation they merit; it must suffice to recount their names, and to leave with you who read, the pleasant task of recalling their great deeds.

In Football, Schwind fully deserves the place of first mention: he was the '27 Captain, and is one of the pair of IV-letter football men whom the Class is duly proud to possess. Noonan is the other IV-letter player. Schaefer and Russell are III-letter men; Koob, Mullan, and Mulcahy, II; and Hayes, I.

Doll, the '27 Basketball Captain, is the hero of his game, in the eyes of the Class; he is a III-letter man, and in the season just passed, was accorded a place on the Conference second-team. Russell is a II-letter player.

The Track team of '28 will be captained by Russell, and the Class is confident of his customary success.

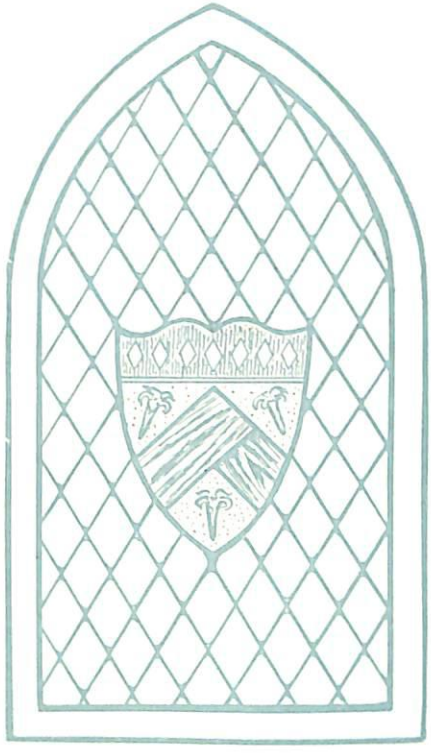

The official Monogram Club has for its officers Russell and Doll.

Of the Intramural sports, five in especial have profited from the work that Class-men have done in them. In the Basketball and Bowling tournaments, the Senior-class teams won first place, with Mullan and Carl Schumacher as joint captains of the one, and Mullan as captain of the other. Captains of Class-teams, or officers in the several clubs, in various years, have been Butler and Leo Schumacher in Indoor Baseball; Donohue and Butler in Passball; Owens and Luke Bodensteiner in Bowling; Wolfe, Luke Bodensteiner, and Donohue in Handball; and Koob in Day-student Basketball.

And now, with a due chronicle of the successful terms of office which Butler and Mulcahy have enjoyed respectively as Head Cheer-leader and Student Manager, this second part of the Class-history comes to its close.

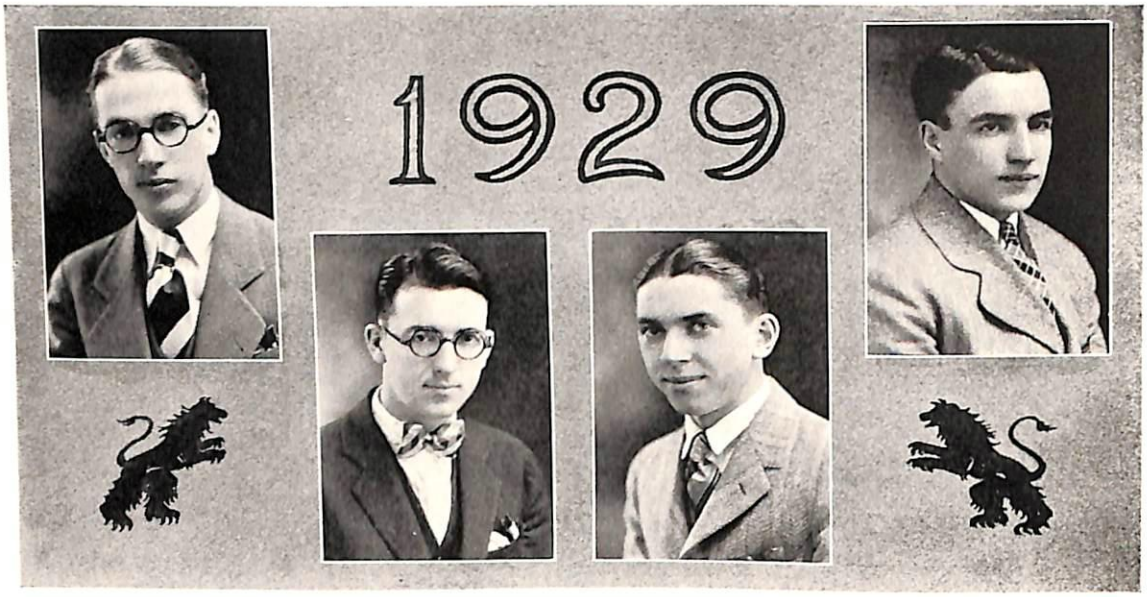

There only remains to point the observation that the Class, by seeking to establish present achievements as patterns for the future, has secured a noteworthily good estate in the Realm of Deeds. Consistently, though sometimes, one may suspect, unknowingly, the Class has striven, and with a success proportionate to their natural gifts and inclinations, their experience and opportunities, to put into profitable practice, the golden ideal of Carlyle, "Not what I Have, but what I Do, is my Kingdom!"

The Junior Aspirations

THE term is ended. We pause. For three years now, we have been climbing the mountains of Knowledge and—what heights! Indeed,

"Hills peep o'er hills and Alps on Alps arise," until the highest peak disappears above the highest star. As we climb we'll always be finding hidden beauties, but still, we cannot help but note our already broadening horizon and realize, too, that Life holds forth marvelous possibilities even to him in the common-place existence.

Three years! What have we gained? Looking within ourselves we see that the journey undoubtedly has been fruitful. We have acquired much knowledge, even though we pine for what might be ours and is not. We rejoice, however, not so much in the learning obtained from books and from sincere teachers, but rather in our growing understanding of those virtues of Faith, Hope, and Charity (happily stressed in the Catholic college), which we recognize, more fully now, as vital determining forces for a true and more perfect life.

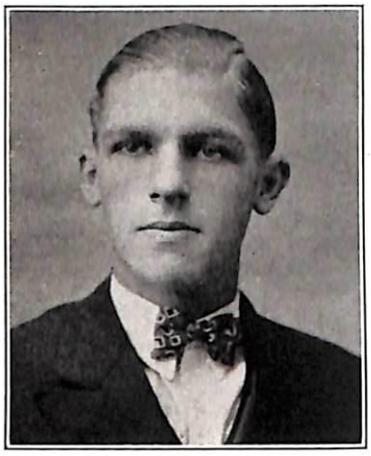

Certainly with few exceptions we possess a stronger faith in God, ourselves, and our fellowman. That Lamp in the hand of our guide lights up the whole mountain and shows us more clearly the beauties of Knowledge, the Reason for its existence, and why we climb so eagerly.

Indeed, we're grateful for its precious ray. It gives us the hope that we may please and love God always; that we may attain to more perfect manhood; and that we may sincerely join our hands and hearts with our fellowmen as we climb to higher and higher things.

Bridging over the summer months we see the birth of another year. We will be Seniors then and our hope is great that we may wear our dignity with decorum. We would win the respect and affection of underclassmen by maintaining a genuine feeling of fraternity in all we do. We hope, and have the faith, that our last year will be a successful one in scholastic attainments, in the worthy performance of extra-curricular activities, and in the fostering of a true and animated school spirit. By our faith we hope truly to love. Has not someone said that "He is truly great who hath great love"?

In Memoriam

Leo J. Fest

Henry J. Schaufenbuel

In August, 1927, Leo J. Fest, of the class of 1930, passed to his reward. Leo was spending the summer vacation at his home in Guttenberg, but he meant to return to Columbia.

Leo was a quiet unassuming young man, wholesome in character, with an aspiring soul. He was studying at Columbia to be a priest of God.

Each of us must suffer the bitter woe of a loved one lost, but into our hearts comes a solace for we know that he "is not dead, but sleepeth." May his soul rest in peace.

On the evening of February 12, Henry J. Schaufenbuel of St. Lucas, Iowa, a member of the Junior class, answered the summons of his Master.

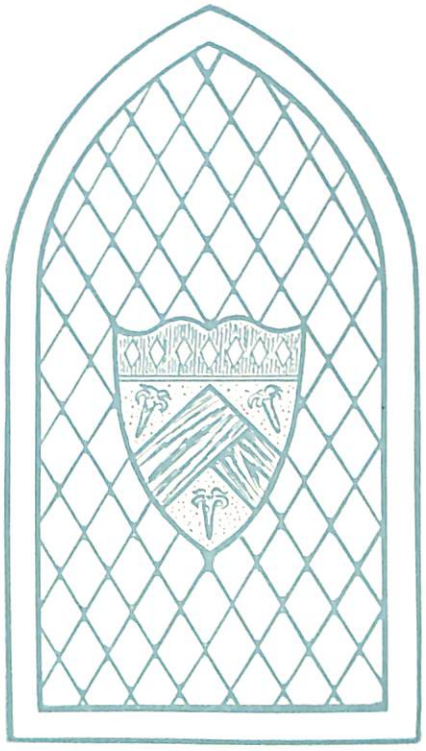

Henry was a Catholic gentleman of the most ideal type; sincere in the pursuit of truth, kind, considerate, and happy in his play. Part of the art work of this volume was to have been under his talented and skillful hand.

But we find our consolation in the assurance that his was indeed a pleasant journey, for he was faithful. May his soul rest in peace.

THE PURGOLD extends to the bereaved relatives the sincerest sympathy of the faculty and students of the college.

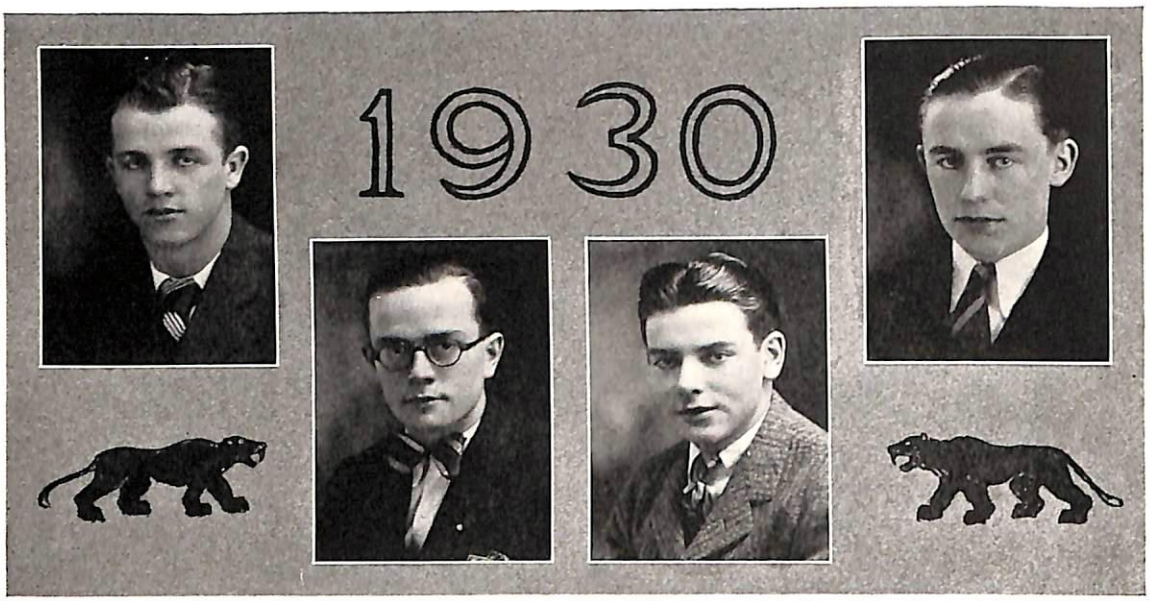

—"and flights of angels sing thee to thy rest."

Sophomore Apologetics

LOOKING back over the history of the Sophomore Class for the school year of 1927-1928 we can find no outstanding incident among the outstanding incidents of that class. What we see as unparalleled feats of glory in another class, we merely look upon as being in the day's work of the class. It is as good as it is honest, as brave as it is retiring, as obedient as it is earnest, and as athletic as it is studious. Its members are noted for their integrity; its officers for their worthiness; and its followers for their discrimination.

By its achievements in any month of the past year it has merited a prominent place in the perpetual halls of Columbia's fame. In the fall months the class was the support of the football team, the spirit of the rooting section, and the faith of the backers. Among its many prominent members on the squad, (lack of space, not of merit, forbids the mention of them all) may be mentioned McAleer and Heller, both of whom were, in turn, chosen for next year's captaincy, George Wolf, John Ryan, Carl Tellers, Vincent O'Brien, and Ed Sybeldon. Among the prominent members in the rooting section as whole-hearted supporters of their team on the field we may mention the class as a whole, and when we say "as a whole" we mean "as a whole."

Second Row: Strabala, Sybeldon, Schieltz, Schroeder, Sedlak, Kelm.
Third Row: Weber, Timmermann, Smitherum, Wolf, Slattery, Twohig.

In the winter months it was represented very ably on the basketball squad by Finley and Weber; on the south bleachers it was again represented by the class as a whole.

Moreover it was excellently represented in the other activities of the school year. It has its members in the band, in the choir, and among the leaders in the games of indoor baseball, handball, passball, track, class basketball, bowling, and tennis. On the honor roll alone, the Sophomores far outnumbered the representatives of any of the other classes. If the names of the members of that class were removed from it, it would lose one-third of its strength. The clubs of the school, especially the scholastic ones, such as the Mathematics Club and Le Cercle Français would consider disbanding, were it not for the Sophomore Class. Its numerous members on the "C" Club were among the most desired ushers at the basketball games; what more need be said of their popularity and personal charm?

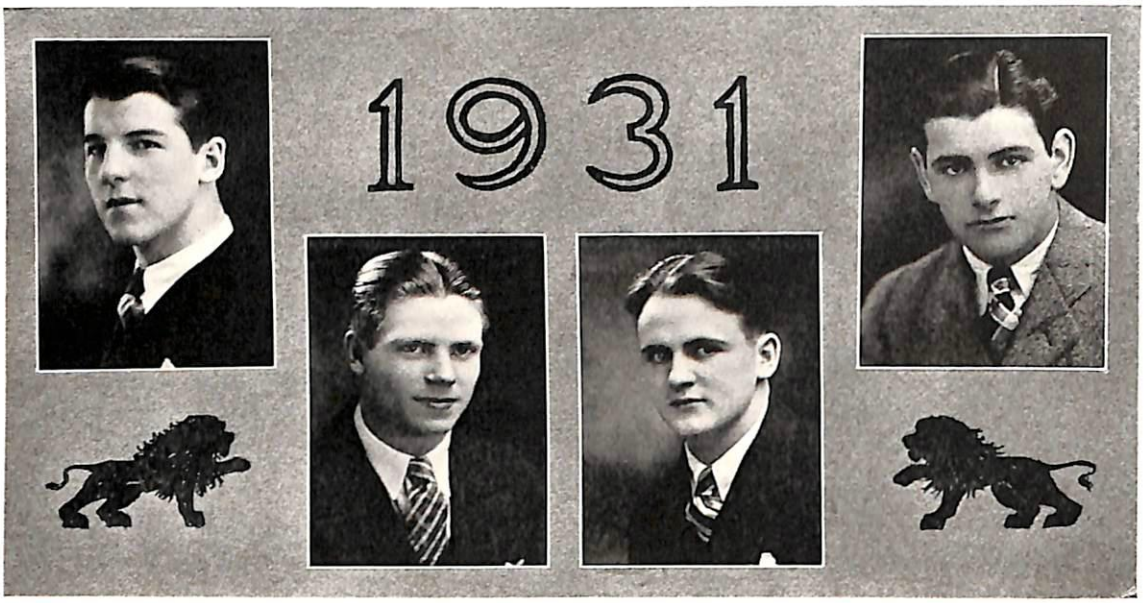

The Freshmen would be lost without the good example and sound advice of the Sophomores; the Juniors and Seniors would despair without their steadfast support and undying loyalty; the school as a whole would not and could not exist without its members. They are the salt of the earth, the nearest possible approach to perfection, and their names, both as individuals and as a whole, will echo down the future years as models for generations yet unborn, and for Freshmen yet uninitiated.

Egoistic, you say? Not a bit of it—just confident. Did I hear somebody say over-confident? Certainly the charge is unjust, for is it not commanded to men not to hide their light under a bushel, but to place it on a mountain top where all may see and profit by it? Therefore, we place this here where he who runs may read.

Freshman Panorama

LAST fall the departing summer breezes wafted to the kindly shores of Columbia a strange vessel—the Freshman Class. Homesick and weary, the new arrivals were in no wise prepared to accept the kindly and extremely warm reception they were tendered by the Junior class. However, after enduring the various phases of the annual initiation the class was admitted as a part of Columbia. As yet, however, there was one mark which proclaimed the Freshman—the Green Cap. Then as friendships formed and goodfellowship abounded, the "authorities" condescended to permit the "Freshies" to devest themselves of this undignified insigne. The upper classmen invited the new men to enter into the college spirit and to participate in all the college activities. The manner in which the class responded to this invitation was pleasing to see and is pleasing to record.

But space permits no long dissertation on class history, so it is necessary that the class accomplishments be merely mentioned. To begin with we mention the intellectual activities. On the honor roll the Freshmen placed their share of "homines sapientes"; on the staffs of the various literary publications the names of Freshmen are to be found. In dramatics those who displayed histrionic talent were utilized with pleasant results by the Dramatic club. In musical ability the class excelled, placing men in the band, the orchestra, and the choir.

Top Row: McGuire, Marron, Murray, Lynch, Leary, Maloney, Macheak.
Second Row: Meng, Reddie, Smith, Olerich, Schroeder, Meyers, McCloskey, Yount, McCarthy, Stute, Croake, McNulty.
Third Row: A. Morgan, McNamara, Lake, White, Spielman, Manson.
Fourth Row: E. Morgan, J. Ryan, Schollian, Fettig, C. Ryan.
Fifth Row: Wernimont, Steiert, Melloy, Shimanek, Stark, Kramer, Olinger.
Sixth Row: McNally, Molinaro, C. Morgan, McKenna, Mullen, O'Connor, Simmons, Rinella.

But it was in athletics that the Freshmen were especially proficient. The varsity teams in the major sports claimed the better part of the talent, a fact which in itself speaks for the caliber of our athletes. Among the athletes, those who won their letter are: Ferring, Haebig, Coan, and White in basketball; and Ferring, C. Ryan, Sauser, A. Leary, are our lettermen in football. On the field or in the gymnasium these men fought to uphold and strengthen the prestige of our Alma Mater—with sportsmanship as well as skill.

In the various branches of the intramural sports the Freshmen teams were successful enough to warrant optimistic prophecies for Columbia's future in athletics. In the passball league the Freshmen team carried off the honors by defeating all the older teams. In the basketball league they finished far from the bottom.

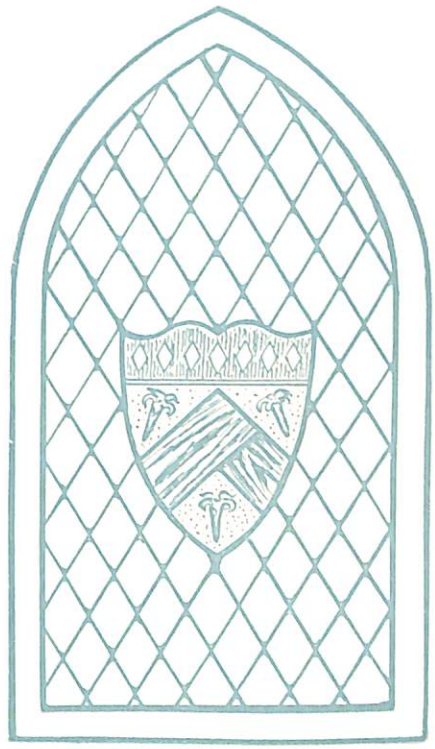

All in all, the Freshman class could very well claim the proverbial "sound mind in a sound body."

At the close of this, what we consider a successful Freshman year, we acknowledge a debt of gratitude to our professors and schoolmates. We thank our professors for aiding us in our spiritual, mental, and physical development this year. To the graduating class we offer congratulations and best wishes for successful futures. We acknowledge the good influences of the Junior class. We thank the Sophomores for their helpful tips throughout the year. To our Alma Mater we pledge the true loyalty of a grateful Freshman class!

Appreciation

AS this goes to press and the time for the completion of THE 1928 PURGOLD draws near we must confess that we are in a sense glad that the task which has been entrusted to us, and which has at times been anything but easy, is now close upon its termination. It has required long and tedious hours of labor to make this annual the successful endeavor for which we have ever striven and which we hope it will be found to be.

We trust sincerely that our efforts towards the production of a worthy history of 1927-28 have borne fruit acceptable not only to the college but to the many friends who throughout the year have given abundant testimony of their interest. We know of course that the book is not without its faults; yet we hope that the meritorious and praiseworthy will be more in evidence than that which may be blameworthy or faulty. And in this we hope to find our reward.

We wish to record our especial thanks to Father Fitzgerald, faculty advisor, Mr. M. S. Hardie, and Mr. Franklin S. Battin of the Tru-Art Engraving Corporation. But we would not forget to express our gratitude to our advertisers, patrons, and all those who have in any way contributed or cooperated with us in connection with our work.

NO annual could ever be produced without the whole-hearted co-operation of an efficient business staff. Upon them devolves the duty not only of soliciting advertisements that will meet the financial obligations attending a publication of this kind, but further still of procuring trade for the patrons so that, by the renewed good will of these merchants and business men, the yearbook will continue to be a success. In each of these details we feel that the members of the business staff of this PURGOLD have accomplished their end.

Rev. E. A. Fitzgerald

Knowing then the debt that is owed to the business staff, the editors feel in justice bound to offer their first expression of thanks to the men who worked so enthusiastically under the capable direction of the business manager, Mr. Herman J. Dietz, in order to make this annual a success. In their behalf also we express our sincere thanks to Father Mullin, faculty advisor, and we beg the faculty and students that in giving credit for the producing of this book they should not forget the men who undertook the task of financing the enterprise.

The Purgold

THE 1928 edition of THE PURGOLD marks the fourth milestone in the history of Columbia's annual. In the fall of 1924 the Senior class of '25 decided to issue a yearbook and Alphonse M. Link was elected as the first editor of THE PURGOLD while Clair Drummy was chosen business manager. Despite the fact that it was a pioneer endeavor for Columbia at that time, the 1925 annual was a very successful achievement.

Each year since that time the Senior class has undertaken the task of publishing THE PURGOLD. Michael J. Martin was editor of the 1926 edition while Paul J. Every was its business manager. Last year P. Leo McCoy was the editor and Clarence C. Goerdt managed the finances with Gus Lynch as advertising manager.

Rev. F. A. Mullin

Throughout these years the book has progressed wondrously, and the volume which this year we submit for the approval of Columbia and her friends owes a debt to every edition that has gone before. We would therefore take this occasion to thank the men who have been our models and our teachers for their unconscious share in THE 1928 PURGOLD.

The College Spokesman

Twenty-fifth Anniversary

"They are the abstracts and brief chronicles of the time."

WITH this year, The College Spokesman, the official literary organ of Columbia, comes of age. Already, the public celebration of this anniversary has taken the form of a dinner held at the Hotel Julien Dubuque on February 12; the banqueters were Monsignor Conry, Fathers Semper, Rowan, Hoffmann, Fitzgerald, Mullin, Mahoney, and Loosbrock, Mr. M. S. Hardie, and the staffs of The Spokesman and The Lorian. Father Semper was the toastmaster; and Monsignor Conry and Mr. Hardie responded with tales of the pioneer times of The Spokesman. Now, as a second memorial to the founding of our magazine, we shall here recount something of its history and progress.

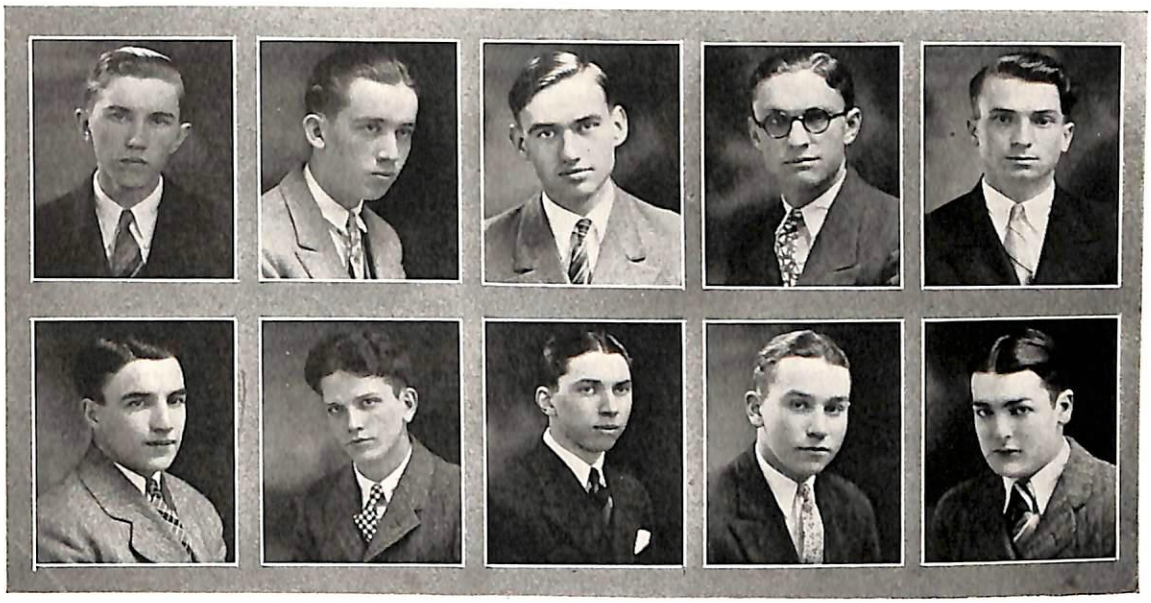

Rev. I. J. Semper

Surely not least among his acts of eminent wisdom and goodness for which Columbia shall ever venerate the name of the late Bishop Carroll, was his founding of The College Spokesman in 1903. To him, who then was President of the college, must the origin of our journal be referred; for he both provided the initial idea of the book, and established a secure financial basis for the furtherance of his plan. Associated with him, in these early beginnings, were Monsignor Conry, whose potent influence arose from his being head of the English Department, and Mr. M. S. Hardie, who undertook the publication of this literary venture.

The first edition, dedicated to Archbishop John Joseph Keane, was notably successful. Original compositions in prose and verse, made up its contents, together with the departments of Editorials, Scholachronicon, Societies, Alumni, and Athletics. Of the poetry in the first issue, Father Semper's "Retrorsum" and Father Craney's "De Profundis" were the best. The leading prose article was a comprehensive study of Dante, written by Joseph Top Row: Donohue, Tracy, Geiger, Halbach, Syrovy.

Second Row: Brennan, Cassidy, Greteman, Fencl, Kelm.

D. Fisch. Throughout that auspicious first year of its existence, The Spokesman had Father Craney for its editor.

Poverty of space forbids more than the mention here of the most illustrious contributors to the pages of our journal. The finest poet was Father McCaffery, who is better known as J. C. Saidmore; and the best story-teller and essayist was Cyrus Manning. Prominent writers were: Fathers Semper, Craney, Rowan, Hoffmann, Theobald, Howell, Patnode, Mahoney, Mullin, Schulte; Walter Phelan, Ernest MacDonald, Joseph Gilmore, Clyde Turnbull, Archie Ward, Andrew Creighton, William Green, Rufus Rauch, Alphonse Link, Michael Haddigan, Francis Brady, and Bernard Schilling.

From its very inception, The Spokesman has immeasureably gained from the larger wisdom of some faculty-member, appointed as an advisor. Monsignor Conry first occupied this position; and, but for a year's interval, maintained it for eighteen years. Other faculty-advisors have been Fathers Hoffmann, Mahoney, and Rowan. Since 1925 The Spokesman has been under the guidance of Father Semper.

There briefly is the history of The College Spokesman. The book is now a quarterly, although in the past it has been issued as a monthly, as a bi-monthly, and as a weekly. Furthermore, it is now unique among college publications, in that it is a strictly literary organ; the departments it was wont to contain, having been absorbed by The Lorian and Cee-Ay, and by THE PURGOLD.

In its fourth year of publication The Lorian, news organ of the college, has been under the able guidance of Frank H. Greteman, Joseph J. Feltes, and Urban D. Kapler. The first mentioned had the editorship during the first semester and the last two held a joint editorship during the second. With the able assistance of a competent staff of associate editors, The Lorian was able to maintain the high standards that have characterized it since its first venture in the field of college journalism.

Favorable criticisms of the paper and gratifying commendations have appeared not infrequently in the columns of other papers on the exchange list, while with those more closely connected with Columbia the paper has always been a welcome bi-weekly visitor.

The Vested Choir

Organized 1878

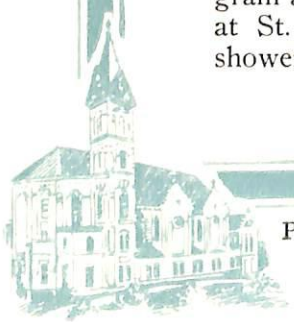

Director	Rev. Alphonsus Dress	Prefect	Francis Mulcahy
President	Arthur Halbach	Librarian	Lawrence Craney
Vice-President	Philip Schaefer	Sacristan	Walter Schmitz
Secretary	Maurice Tracy	Chanters	Elmer Becker, Joseph Syrovy

THE Columbia College Vested Choir is among the oldest organizations at the college. Organized as a choir in 1878, and as the Vested Choir in 1910, it has become one of the most potent activities of the college, recognized for its versatility not only at home but throughout the state.

During the present year, the Rev. Dr. Dress, for many years the inspiration and very heart of the choir, has again brought it to an acme of musical perfection, culminating in the exquisite rendition of the Palm Sunday services at St. Raphael's Cathedral.

Composed of the best talent available the choir excels in the rendition of the plain chant and a capella singing. Their concert program consists of selections from the old masters as well as light madrigals and folk songs.

On the patronal feast of the college, the choir rendered a beautiful program and on Palm Sunday as an annual event took part in the solemn services at St. Raphael's Cathedral, where nothing but highest commendation was showered upon them.

The College Band

Organized 1912

Director Rev. Emmet G. Kelly
Assistant Director Prof. Felix Bonifazzi
Drum Major James F. Regan

AN asset to any college is a good band; it is essential for engendering the necessary enthusiasm requisite for real college pep at all athletic contests. Columbia is fortunate in having a band that became an active factor in the football and basketball seasons. All during the year the band was in evidence at the games and on more than one occasion facilitated the way to victory for the team.

Having its inception in 1912, the band has grown by leaps and bounds and has attained a high degree of excellence. With its large repertoire, it is always greeted with enthusiasm when it appears in public. The college is fortunate in having this splendid organization in which to develop a talent and appreciation for the spirited martial type of music and to enable the students to take advantage of its complete equipment and make themselves proficient in instrumental music.

Father Kelly was no minor aid to the band's well merited reputation. Himself a finished musician, he was ever ready to lead and direct, obtaining those results so evidenced by the appearances of the band.

The College Orchestra

Organized 1880

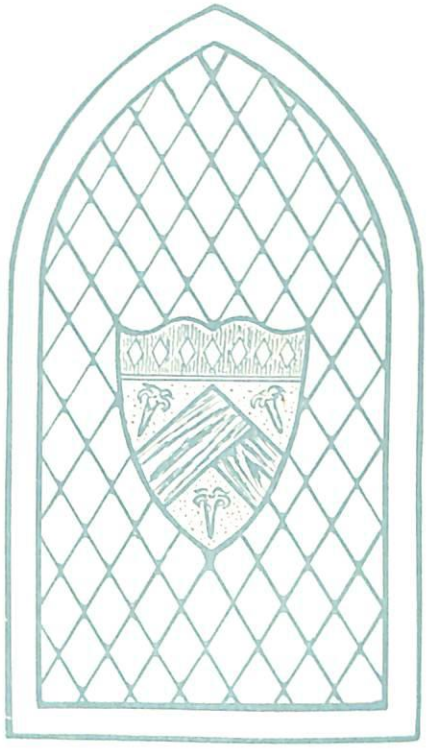

Director Prof. Edward J. Schroeder

DURING the scholastic year of 1880 the College Orchestra took its place among the organizations of the school. As in its past history so this year the orchestra has again been the source of pleasure to the many listeners at the plays and concerts presented under the auspices of the college. For those who have talent for instrumental music the orchestra, being well equipped, is a source of education and musical inspiration.

Professor Schroeder, whose merits are widely recognized, is the efficient director. To Professor Bonifazzi and Miss Ruth Harragan, who are very active in all the departments of music at the college, is due in a great measure any success that these musical organizations have enjoyed.

THE MASTER SALESMAN

The Salesman Joseph Feltes
The Stenographer Henry Kingsley

BOX AND COX
By J. M. Morton

Box Ralph Lassance
Cox Louis Fautsch
Mrs. Bouncer Roman Schares

THE MASTER SALESMAN proved to be an entertaining, even if a light skit. Some genuine lines, and the characterizations of the starring trio, put it over in a creditable manner.

As the forceful young farmer, come to the the city to buy an oil tractor from Feltes, the high-powered salesman, Dietz, presented a very humorous character. Herman's fresh stage manner never fails to draw a laugh.

Feltes brought to life the nerve-wracking bombast of a salesman who had to be checked at the point of a gun before he could understand that the purpose of his flow had already been realized, even though through no effort of his own. Kingsley impersonated the sweet, gum-chewing, feather-brained young stenographer who was under the common illusion that she "knew her onions." His dumb-show was especially effective.

Two bachelors, a boarding house, and a wily landlady give us the setting of the one act farce, BOX AND COX. Such an arrangement is especially interesting when Lassance and Fautsch take the rôle of the anti-connubial pair.

This pair made a very interesting fifteen minutes of a quite-too-light and unoriginal piece, burdened with trite phrases and many soliloquies. Roman Schares as the coarse-voiced, scheming landlady gave additional humor to the scene. This play, together with THE MASTER SALESMAN, was given on the occasion of the annual mission program. Both were in good keeping with the tone of the evening's entertainment.

EVERYMAN was perhaps the most remarkable production of the Dramatic Club for this year. The most popular of morality plays, the production of which dates as early as the year 1500, it has lost none of its appeal and popularity in the twentieth century.

The role of Everyman required an artistic variety of moods and control of voice for which Mann was eminently adapted. The skill with which he interpreted his part, now supremely happy, now sunk in the depths of despair, has rarely been equaled on the Columbia stage.

Everyman, after Death has bid him prepare for the journey that all must make, summons his friends and relatives and begs them to accompany him. His appeal is of no avail and one by one, they forsake him.

Top Row: Wilkins, Mann, Lassance, Halbach, Perion.
Second Row: Brickley, Rosecrans, Cooling, Clark, Regan, Russell.

The outstanding scene was that in which Everyman is deserted by Riches, played by Lassance who, perhaps next to Mann, took his part most effectively. His interpretation was very nearly faultless. Becker's interpretation of Death was well done. The dramatic solemnity of his voice impressed everyone with the fact that the most serious moment of life is the last.

Halbach handled his part, that of the Messenger with his characteristic ease and dignity. The awe-inspiring delivery of Fautsch, who, as Adonai, or the Voice of God, did not appear on the stage, deserves especial mention. Good Deeds, one of the most important parts, was played by Brickley. His fine understanding of the part and the sympathetic appeal of his voice auger well for future successes. Schmitz, in his brilliant costume, made a fine appearance as Strength. Schroeder portrayed the dashing Fellowship with his usual skill. Beadle, Fabish, and Rosecrans, appearing for the first time in feminine rôles, were fully effective. The appearance of Fabish, the voice of Rosecrans, and the actions of Beadle were noteworthy. Kingsley, as Kindred; Dietz, as Confession; and Schares, as Five Wits, gave their customary fine performances. Regan, Russell, Greteman, and Hornung handled their parts in a manner without a slip. Kapler, Clark, Cooling, Frantzen, and Kress as Angels and Acolytes added a touch of color to the play.

The scenery was in the modern impressionistic style, the stage plainly draped in black. In the beauty of its simplicity, the setting was well in keeping with the lofty theme of the play. The rich and various costumes were historically correct to the minutest detail and undoubtedly added greatly to the success of the play.

The Confession

By J. H. Reid

Rose Creighton	Ward Loftus	Andrew Strong	Clifford Kress
Mrs. Mary Bartlett	Karl Schroeder	Frank Gordon	Clarence Koob
Michael Grogan	Louis Fautsch	John Peabody	Theodore Niemann
Patsey Moran	John Beadle	J. Coburn	Vincent Conlon
Thomas Bartlett	John Farnan	E. P. Dustin	John F. Ryan
Father Bartlett	Donald Noonan	C. B. Blackburn	Herman Metz
Joseph Dumont	Ralph Lassance	A. J. Hunter	Raymond Deming

THE theatre-going public can occasionally stand a genuine melodrama. The presentation of The Confession by the Loras Crusaders proved this. The plot of The Confession is a familiar one. A Catholic priest, through the confession of the guilty man, knows that his own brother is innocent of a murder for which he has been convicted. But he is ready to let his brother pay the penalty of death rather than break the sacred seal of the confessional.

Donald Noonan, with his own cool reserve took the part of the priest and carried it in true manner. John Farnan, with a like pleasing quality, represented the priest's brother. Ralph Lassance as the real murderer worked out an excellent character portrayal.

It was the work of the general favorite, Louis Fautsch to bring in the comedy relief at intervals, in his rôle of the fighting Irish sexton. In this he was aided by John Beadle, playing his first part on the Columbia stage.

The two feminine rôles were carried by Karl Schroeder and Ward Loftus, the former impersonating the mother of the priest, while Rose Creighton was represented by the latter. Karl must have studied the type he played, for his portrayal did it justice. It was Ward's first attempt at a feminine rôle, and his work indicates promise for the future.

The entire cast was well chosen. Metz and Ryan as the attorneys; Kress, the Sheriff; Niemann, the judge; and Koob and Deming as members of the court, all lent atmosphere to the court scene. Father Breen did remarkably well with the cast. We hope he will soon attempt another piece.

Donohue Fautsch C. Schumacher Meinert Schares

Number Seventeen

By J. J. Farjeon

Gilbert Fordyce	Louis Fautsch
Eddie Scott	John Farnan
Mr. Ackroyd	Leo Schumacher
Smith	Carl Schumacher
Mr. Brant	Carl Zak
"Henry"	James Donohue
Lloyd Ackroyd	Roman Schares
Nora	Joseph Meinert
Ben, a sailor	James Fitzpatrick

FOR those who like mystery plays, and such seem to be in the majority at Columbia, Number Seventeen was a real treat. It was the usual story of jewel thieves and their apprehension; the usual devices were employed—of lights going out, doors slamming, of falling plaster and distant rumblings. But all credit to Father O'Hagan and his cast for converting such a much-used plot into a really novel snatch of life-like action.

The two great luminaries of the presentation were Louis Fautsch and James Fitzpatrick. Fautsch in the rôle of the detective, Gilbert Fordyce, was treading a higher dramatic level, and "Fitz," as Ben the sailor, was his congenial companion in that feat. With their rare gift of injecting humor into the action these two kept the audience in a delighted mood. Louie is a veteran in amateur circles, but Jim was walking the stage for the first time at the college, and hence his success is the more brilliant.

John Farnan filled the part of the vivacious Eddie Scott, and Carl Zak caught the very inner spirit of the crook and bully in his villain part. He should fill more rôles of that nature.

Schares L. Schumacher Fautsch Farnan Fitzpatrick

"Henry," the second and even bigger crook, was impersonated by the versatile James Donohue. Jim can be mighty crooked when the occasion presents itself. Not a little credit is due Joseph Meinert for the handling of his first feminine rôle. After the usual masculine attempt at a woman's part, Joe's voice was quite a treat.

In their double rôles the Schumacher twins kept up the excitement by bringing in a little mistaken identity between a crook and an ordinary civilian. For the Schumachers also, this was the occasion of their first appearance on the college stage. Roman Schares played the part of the boy in his usual appealing, pleasing manner.

The unusual number of debuts made Number Seventeen particularly interesting to the student audience, for they always enjoy watching their fellows make their initial attempts.

Besides the cast of characters, the success of the play was due largely to Francis Mulcahy and his stage crew, on account of their faithful handling of the properties. An audience is seldom brought to appreciate just how much of success is manufactured behind the scenes. Without the faithful and efficient handling of matters back stage, the best play written may become a total failure, and proficiency behind the scene may popularize a comparatively poor piece.

The Dramatic Club

GOOD organizations are generally known by their accomplishments. The Columbia College Dramatic Club is known and admired throughout the City of Dubuque and a good deal beyond these limits. It must be because the club has done things.

The club, under the direction of Father O'Hagan has completed an active and fruitful year. Presenting legitimate stage productions of every kind, it has entertained successfully, and more; it has given the students and play-goers in the city something for their finer tastes to feed upon. It has given many men the detailed and genuine training which does many an individual a service by providing him with an artistic and congenial spare time occupation. These have been the accomplished aims of the Dramatic Club during the many years of its existence.

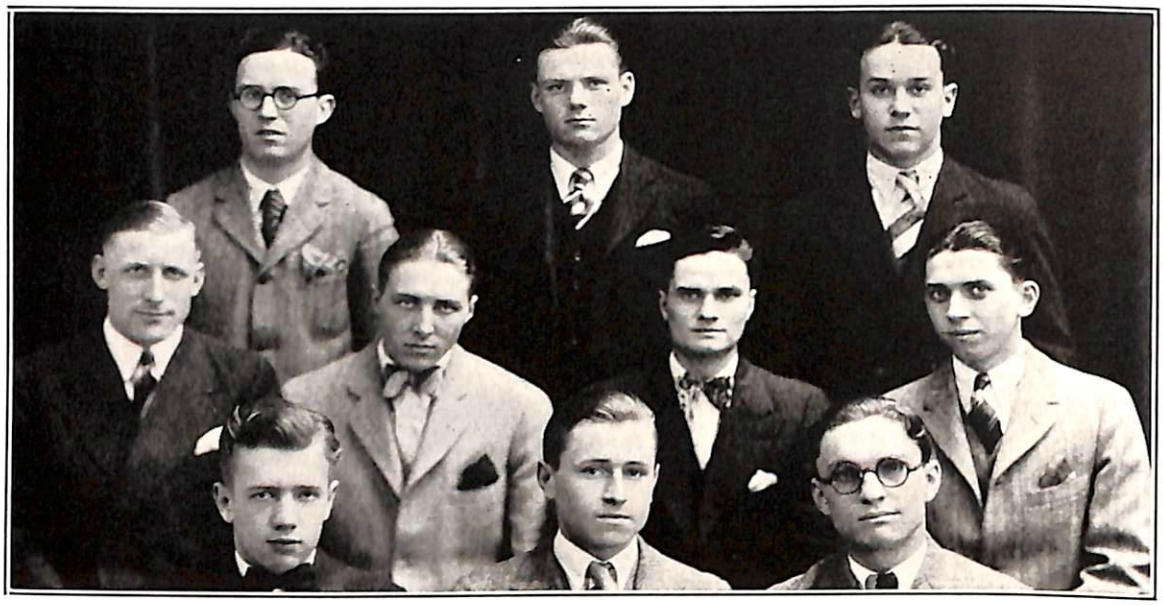

This year a number of real artists is on the retiring list. The fans will miss the consistently artistic work of Arthur Halback next year, and the comic touches of Herman Dietz. John Farnan, James Donohue, and the Schumacher brothers, who have been leaders in the club and Donald Noonan with his occasional artistic strokes upon his few appearances, and finally Francis Mulcahy who has managed the stage so ably during the past year when not himself acting or entertaining, all these are leaving Columbia and the club with their student career brilliantly terminated.

There is a wealth of younger material now in the organization which is expected to take up the work next year. This fact was very evident in the final enterprise of the year, the College Minstrel Show. With Fathers O'Hagan, Steffen, and Kelly directing it, the venture was brought to a successful termination in a pair of well received performances before the students and the general public.

The Acolythical Society

Founded 1873

Moderator Rev. Thomas B. O'Toole
Senior Sacristan Arthur Halbach
Junior Sacristan Urban Kapler
Organist Elmer Becker

THE Acolythical Society is composed of a group of men who lead and direct the other students in taking part in religious functions at Columbia. Those comprising the society are the sacristans who prepare the altars for religious exercises and take charge of the training and direction of acolytes, the prayer leaders, and the organist who directs the congregational singing. Under the direction of Father O'Toole, the moderator of the society, these men made the chapel services at Columbia during this year a splendid success.

The Forum

Founded 1920

President Wendell M. Russell
Vice-President J. Harold Lafferty
Secretary and Treasurer Vincent B. Conlon

WITH the intent of affording the students of the philosophy department an organized medium for co-operation with the faculty, as well as a center for philosophical study and discussion, the Forum was founded by a former president, Father Stuart, in 1920. Due especially to the nature of the latter aim, membership in the society has always been limited to the students of the Senior and Junior classes.

During later years however the society has gradually lost its significance as a philosophical study center but has remained as a medium of faculty and student inter-communication. In addition to this feature it has likewise grown into a potent instrument for developing and promoting good-fellowship among the members. To forward this aim regular entertainments are held throughout the year. At these meetings various of the members are given opportunities for displaying their talents in numerous entertaining features. At least one, and usually more, of the faculty are always in attendance at these programs and favor the students with interesting and entertaining talks. Father Flynn, especially, a member of the original Forum, has attended meetings regularly, and favored the group with his fine vocal selections.

The Mission Unit

President	Frederick S. Schwind
First Vice-President	Francis M. Mulcahy
Second Vice-President	William J. Mann
Third Vice-President	Clifford Kress
Secretary	Edward C. Brennan
Treasurer	J. Harold Lafferty

FOR the furtherance of missionary activities among the students at Loras Hall, the Propagation of the Faith Unit was organized years ago. The annual Mission fund is formed from the receipts of dramatic programs, from the sale of newspapers and pamphlets, and from the dues collected from the students by the promoters of the Unit. The largest source of revenue in the past year was the annual Minstrels, the proceeds of which amounted to considerably over one hundred dollars. The amount obtained from these various sources reaches a considerable total and is transferred to the arch-diocesan director at the end of the scholastic year.

Monogram Club

Organized 1922

Faculty Advisor Rev. Bernard Skahill
President Wendell Russell
Vice-President John Ennis
Secretary Lawrence Doll

A Monogram Club was organized in 1922 through the efforts of Father Hoffmann, its first faculty advisor. Father O'Toole was the secretary.

All students who have received their monogram in any major sport are eligible for membership. The purpose of the club is to assist the athletic management and to develop a fraternal spirit among the athletes.

The members act as ushers at all intercollegiate athletic contests. Especially worthy of praise is the admirable manner in which they cared for the visiting teams during the diocesan basketball tournament.

The Mathematics Club

Founded 1923

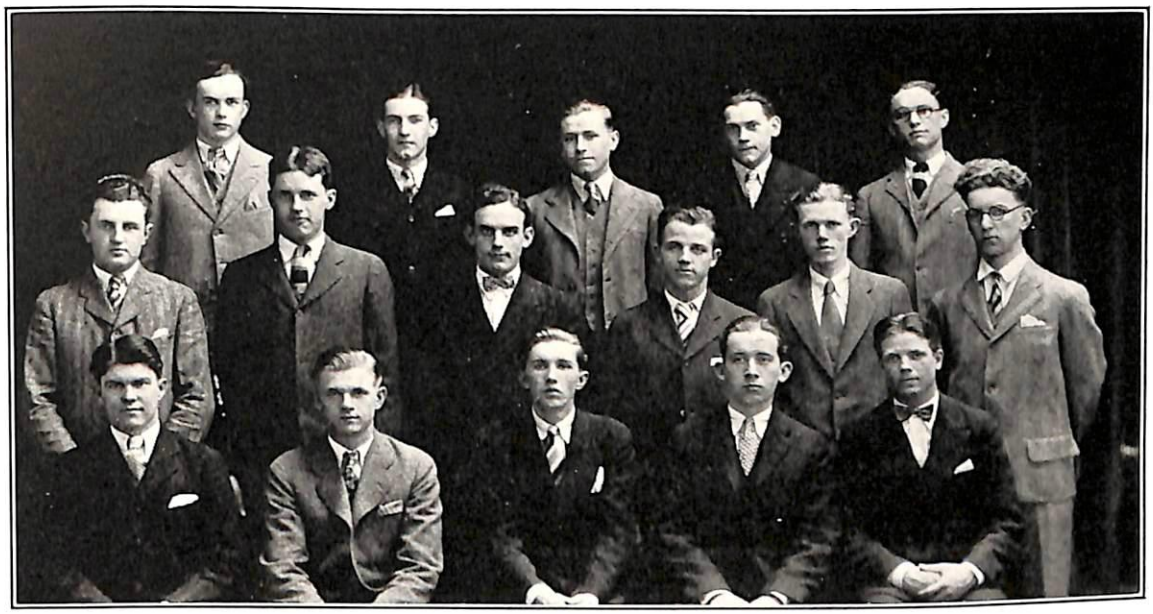

President Rev. James B. Craney
Vice-President Rev. John Theobald
Moderator Mr. G. W. Heitkamp
Secretary Anthony W. Chihak

IN 1923-24, with the express purpose of stimulating interest in and encouraging the study of mathematics, the Mathematics club was organized. Since its introduction it has had a growth so constant as to enable it to assume the most prominent place among the extra-curricular scholastic activities of the college. Four meetings were held during the year, all of which proved to be interesting as well as very educational.

To Father Theobald is due much credit for the club's success; he has been ever active in suggesting topics and helping the students collect the material for their papers. Besides he has helped to make the discussion of the papers very lively and interesting.

That the club is attaining the purpose it has undertaken is evidenced by the fruits it has produced. The number of those taking mathematics is increasing from year to year; and the number of mathematics majors is on the increase.

Le Cercle Francais

Founded 1924

Moderator Rev. Alphonsus Dress
President James J. Donohue
Vice-President Maurice Mullan
Secretary Maurice Tracy

LE Cercle Français, organized by the students of French under the direction of the Rev. Alphonsus Dress, has held informal meetings every two weeks throughout the second semester, and presented the annual French elocution contest to the public.

The members of the club are encouraged to outside reading, and at the meetings recitations, dialogues, and conversation in French are in order, as well as discussions of France and the French people carried on in English. Part of every meeting is also devoted to French songs. Thus every incentive is offered to the student of French to make him appreciate the beauty of the language and to make him become more skillful in its use. Doctor Dress, the moderator, is especially to be commended for his splendid work in making this society a success.

The Loras Crusaders

Founded 1926

President Clarence G. Koob
Vice-President Donald J. Noonan
Secretary William Mann
Treasurer Clifford Kress

THE Loras Crusaders are a continuation of the Day-Students Sodality which was founded last year by Father Sheehy. This year, the work of Father Sheehy, who is pursuing advanced studies at the Catholic University, was taken up by Father Breen who kindly volunteered his time and services as moderator. Under his leadership and through the efforts of a staff of efficient officers, the Crusaders renewed with vigor the program of the preceding year.

The four-fold purpose—religious, scholastic, social, and recreational—was kept ever in mind, with the religious program appropriately taking the predominate place. The reception of Holy Communion on First Friday, daily Mass, the presentation of The Confession, a fine basketball team, and monthly social meetings are but a few of the activities of this active organization which has emphasized the position of the day-students as an integral, component part of the student body.

The Debating Team

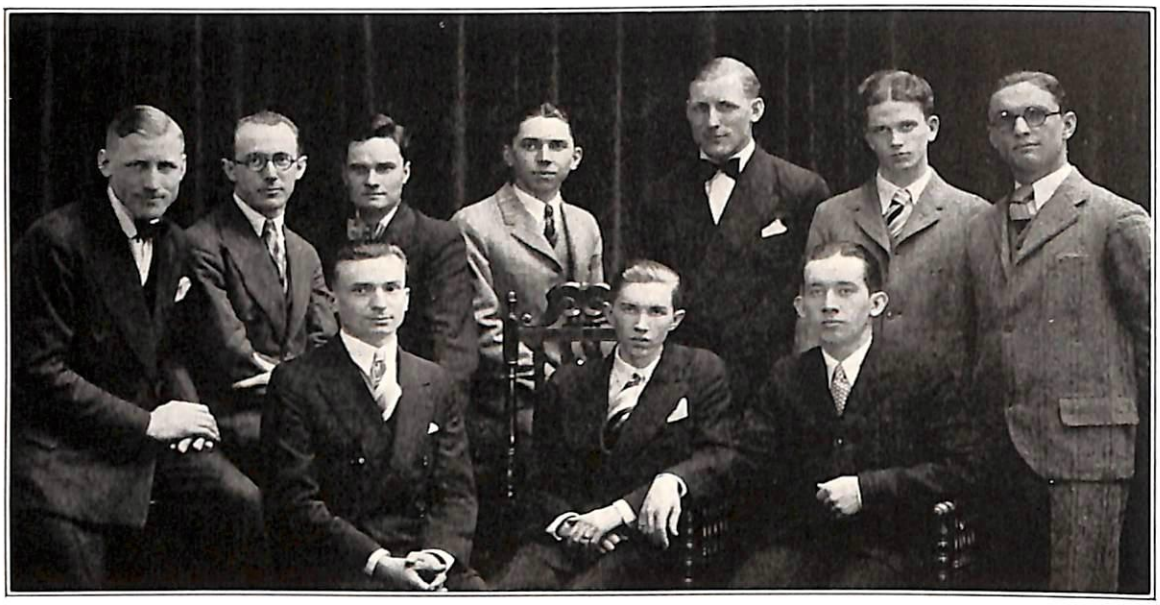

Founded 1927

Coach Rev. E. J. O'Hagan

ALTHOUGH Columbia has always fostered intramural debating it remained this year for Father O'Hagan to organize the first varsity debating team in the history of the school.

Each class organized a team and many interesting debates were held between class teams before the varsity team was chosen. The question for debate this year was: Resolved that the United States should cease to protect by armed force capital invested in foreign lands except after a formal declaration of war.

In a debate with Marquette University in which Columbia took the negative the team made a very creditable showing for their initial appearance. The negative team was composed of Messrs. Donohue, Kinney, and Zak, while Messrs. Geiger, Greteman, and Tracy comprised the affirmative team.

The Decemvirate

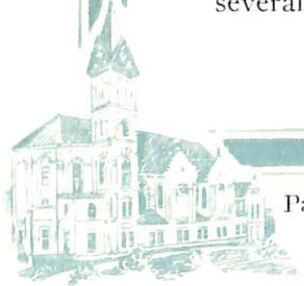

Founded 1927

President James J. Donohue
Secretary-Treasurer Maurice J. Tracy

ONE of the youngest organizations at Columbia is the Decemvirate. It was founded at the beginning of this scholastic year by a group of Seniors and Juniors who became charter members of the club. Charter members are selected from the Junior and Senior classes; however, honorary membership is not restricted to any class. Honorary members chosen this year were: Fathers Steffen and O'Hagan; Messrs. William Kelm, William Mann, and Bernard Schilling.

The purpose of the society is the study of literature and the other fine arts and to promote the drama. Some excellent meetings dealing with the drama, the novel, poetry, architecture, and painting were held, and severel successful plays were produced during the year with the aid of a large number of interested helpers from the rest of the students.

Among the plays presented were an abridgement of Julius Caesar and several original one-act plays.

The Athletic Department

George W. Heitkamp

A gradually widening influence has marked Columbia's athletic activities within recent years, and especially during the past season. The entrance of the school into the Iowa Conference has resulted in establishing relationships with several colleges throughout the state, with whom Columbia had previously held no inter-communication. Inter-sectional football contests also carried the local colors to many far distant centers.

The merit for this increased recognition is due mainly to the efforts of George W. Heitkamp, who has completed his third year as athletic director of the College. His untiring efforts and prudent judgment were the factors which completed the excellent schedules drawn up for the athletic teams during the past year.

However, in his endeavor to gain increased prominence for Columbia Mr. Heitkanp has not overestimated the value of mere popularity. His first principle, as has always been true of Columbia, has been constantly to inculcate the ideals of true sportsmanship and virile manhood into the members of the various teams, and into the individual members of the student body as well.

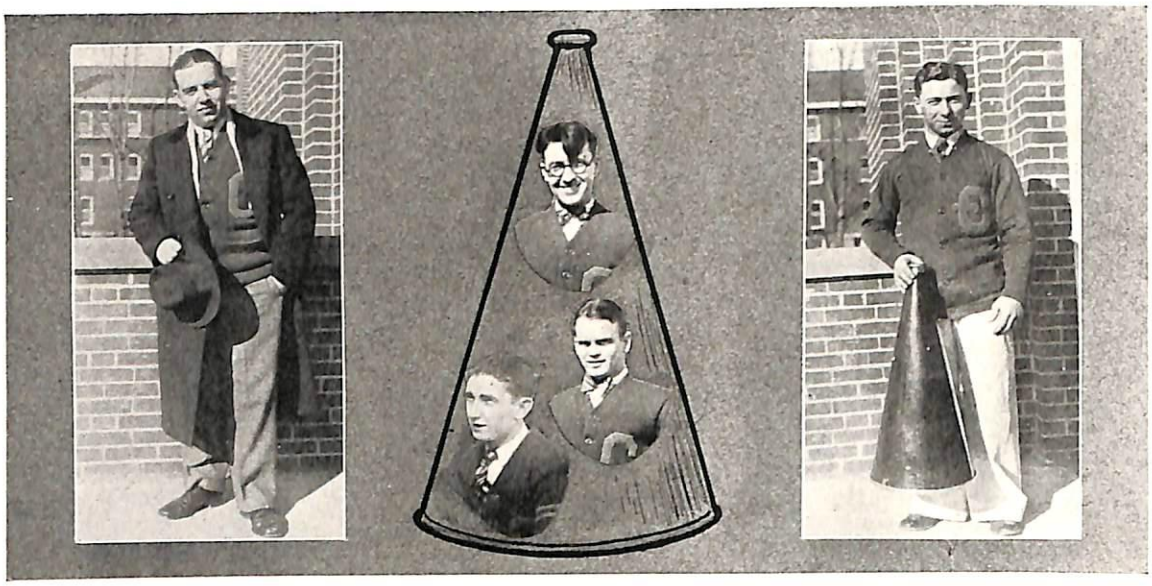

The actual furtherance of these ideals was carried out more directly by Coach John A. Armstrong, who as varsity mentor had a more immediate contact with the men themselves. His personal attention and guiding principles combined to make those under his direction better men for having been good athletes.

The results attained by "Armie" during this, his first year as a college athletic mentor are unmistakable evidence that to be a successful coach it is by no means necessary to have previously gained All-American recognition.

The gridiron squad which bore the local colors during 1927 rendered a very creditable account of itself throughout a very stiff schedule. The Pony cage quint although hampered by injuries and lack of veteran material nevertheless came through the schedule with a commendable record. With "Armie's" knowledge of track tactics, the cinder artists should likewise be developed into deserving representatives of Columbia.

Francis M. Mulcahy
Student Athletic Manager

Possibly one of the most thankless positions in the school is that of Student Manager. The efforts and time expended in fulfilling the duties which result from this office are generally unknown to the average student, but they are nevertheless countless and of varying natures.

This office was filled during the past year by Francis M. Mulcahy. Although his task was rendered somewhat more complicated, during the early part of the year, by the fact that he was simultaneously a member of the football squad, yet "Mul" always found sufficient time to superintend faithfully the tasks entrusted to him. He was throughout the year a willing and a loyal worker. His able assistance resulted in lightening to no small degree the work of Athletic Director Heitkamp, and redounded greatly to the comfort and convenience of the visiting athletes, as well as to the pleasure and gratification of the patrons and students, at the various contests.

Edward J. Butler
Head Cheer Leader

In the matter of student pep Columbia ranks second to none. It is to this student morale that the splendid showings made by Columbia's athletes are largely due. The cause of this whole hearted co-operation with the teams, and of the zealous personal interest which Columbians have felt in them during the past year, is found in the person of "Eddie" Butler, head cheer-leader. "Eddie's" buoyant disposition coupled with his ability to lead, resulted in bringing the teams some greatly appreciated moral support, at times when it was most needed. Assisted by an energetic corps of auxiliaries, consisting of "Bill" Mann, "Bob" Dotson, "Sass" McNally, and later "Boots" McKenna, "Eddie," by his spirited appeals and rallying directions, often led the students into turning what seemed likely defeats into well-defined victories. In addition to this position "Eddie" likewise acted as varsity trainer. Many a sprained joint, bruised muscle, or sore ligament did he nurse back to normalcy, with the skill of a professional.

Football

The Season

THE football season of 1927 was, in many respects, one of the greatest in the history of Columbia's gridiron activities. It has undoubtedly established by its intersectional games a precedent that may profitably be followed in the future.

As a result of the performances of her loyal athletes, Columbia lays claim to no conference trophies. However, it is no insignificant fact that her warriors met, in some instances teams above their own class, in others aggregations which, while classed with themselves in football strength, were widely picked to win by comfortable scores, whom they routed, battled to a standstill, or held to such narrow margins that the comparative superiority of the two contenders was at times doubted by neutral sport writers. A check of the season's issue reveals two victories, three tie games, and an equal number of defeats.

No other Columbia team has ever traveled so extensively, or battled so many or such powerful sectional representatives as did the Duhawk gridders of the past season. The Columbia colors were again carried into the East and borne gamely against one of the most powerful elevens in that area, that of the University of Detroit. Regis College, reputed as possessing one of the leading aggregations in the mountain sector, was also host to the Purple and Gold warriors, who furnished the Denver Rangers with one of their most exciting battles of the year, after the latter had been doped to win in an easy struggle. In addition to these teams the Duhawks met the elevens of several of the leading colleges in Iowa, Wisconsin, and Illinois.

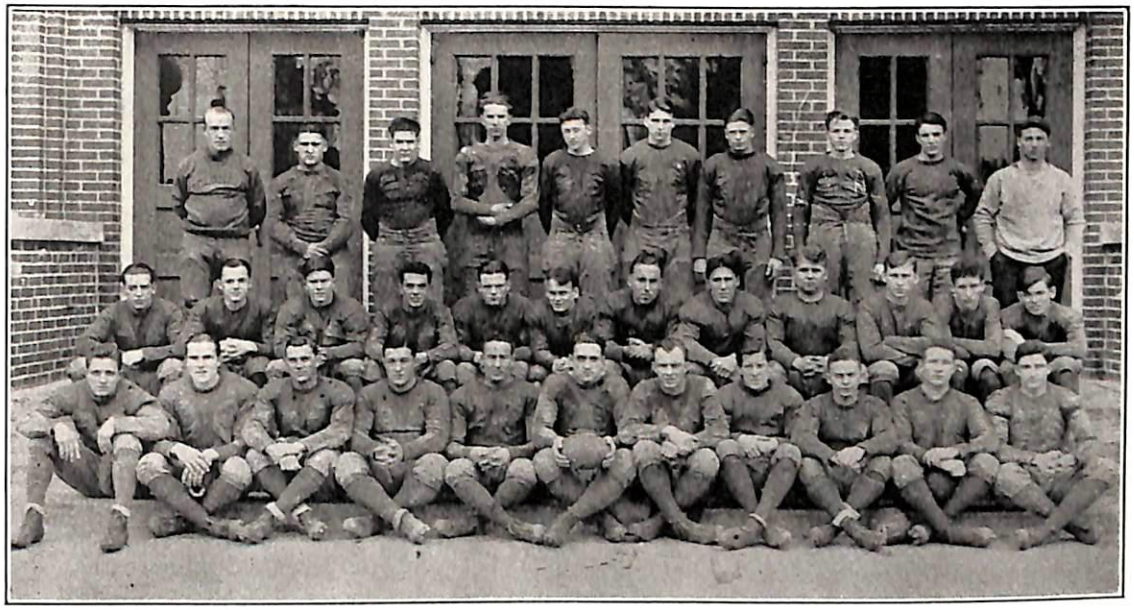

In the face of the most gruelling schedule that ever confronted a Columbia team, in addition to the fact that the squad had been entrusted to a new coach, much scepticism at first prevailed concerning a successful season. These adverse opinions were in no way allayed by the realization that four of the most prized members of the 1926 team, men whose names had been bywords in Columbia football annals throughout their college careers and whose worth to the team was consequently known to be practically invaluable, had been lost through graduation.

In spite of these odds Coach Armstrong succeeded, with the propensity of an artist, in drilling new men to such a degree of utility that their performance in no way betrayed their inexperience. With his ability for generalship, in applying his knowledge of gridiron tactics, "Armie" produced an aggregation that functioned with genuine harmony. To such an extent was this true that in no game was there any one individual star, although several men were at times outstanding together.

If a team's success were judged merely from the standpoint of the numerical margin that it had gained over its opponents, many might maintain that the achievements of the 1927 Duhawks were at best but mediocre. However, the enthusiastic support which the fans and students gave the team, throughout the entire schedule, was ample evidence that figures are not the entire story.

The opponents which the Purple and Gold warriors met were, in most instances, of such caliber that only an aggregation functioning with real teamwork and capable of playing genuine football against them could have furnished even an interesting struggle. Hence it was, that even though the majority of the games did not result in victories for Columbia, yet the ardor of Duhawk fandom seemed even to heighten with the approach of the season's finale.

One of the most disastrous slashes that a Columbia team ever suffered was the fate of the 1927 Duhawk grid squad. Through the graduation of such trusty warriors as Captain Schwind and Francis Mulcahy, guards; "Bill" Russell, halfback; "Phil" Schaefer, center; "Lefty" Koob and "Red" Hayes, ends; and, "Jiggs" Noonan and "Moon" Mullan, quarterbacks, practically an entire team doffs forever the moleskins of their Alma Mater. In addition to these eight lettermen, the services of a reserve, James Regan, will likewise be unavailable after June.

With this unusually large number of men missing from next season's ranks, Coach Armstrong will face one of the most perplexing situations that any mentor might concieve of. To reconstruct a representative team after such a wholesale demolition would test the capabilities of any coach. However, the outlook is not as cheerless as may first appear.

With the skill and competence which his results obtained with the 1927 team evince, "Armie" will undoubtedly allay all misgivings before the coming season has well started. In the persons of Captain-elect Heller, J. Ryan, Ferring, Pacetti, Lukens, O'Brien, Leary, and C. Ryan he will have a sizeable nucleus of lettermen with whom to begin operations.

In addition to these veterans an ample squad of reserves, some of whom saw action in the past season and appeared very promising, will likewise be at hand to be drafted. Among these are: Sybeldon, Klees, G. Wolf, Brennan, Fitzpatrick, White, Bernacki, J. Leary, Sauser, McKenna, Weber, Calvi, McGuire, O'Connor, Shimanek, and Wright.

LESTER McALEER

FRED SCHWIND

LESTER MCALEER, 148 — Halfback
Monticello, Iowa

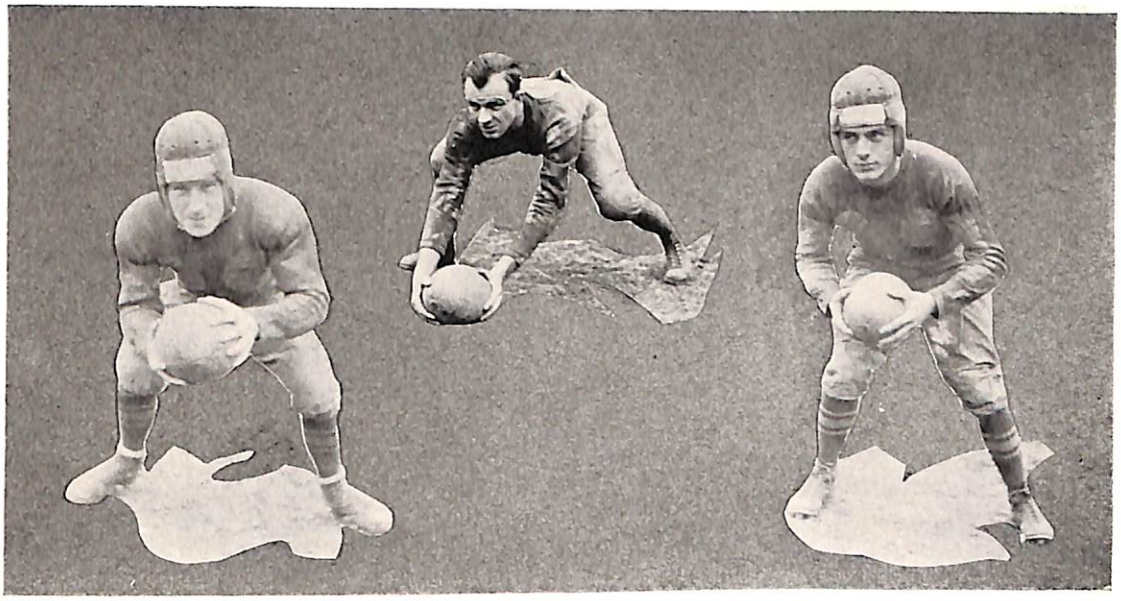

Although chosen at the close of the past football season to captain the 1928 Duhawks "Mac" decided at the conclusion of the semester to terminate his college career. Subsequently Bernard Heller was made captain-elect, in his stead. However, as the cuts in this section were, at that time, already completed we are running them as originally intended. "Mac" would have, unquestionably, made an excellent leader for the Duhawks had he continued at school. During his two years as a local warrior he won a reputation as the greatest player for his size on the squad. As an interference runner "Mac" was unsurpassed. For handling passes he was equally deadly on either end, and as an all-around player he was one of the sensations in the local backfield throughout the season.

Touchdown!

FRED SCHWIND, 188 — Captain, and Guard
Cascade, Iowa

"The tougher they come the better he likes it"; that is the way Fred plays football. His more intimate friends call this burly son of Cascade "Tiny," but not so his adversaries on the gridiron. Many an opposing player has had cause to regret his football ambitions after testing his skill and ability against this veteran Duhawk warrior. Beyond a doubt one of the best guards that ever drew on the moleskins for the Purple and Gold, already in his Freshman year Fred proved his worth to the Columbia team, and won a berth as a regular. To enumerate the games of the past season in which Fred starred would be mere tautology; "Tiny's" services were indispensable in every contest for which the Duhawk warriors took the field.

DONALD NOONAN PHILIP SCHAEFER WENDELL RUSSELL

DONALD NOONAN, 150 Quarterback
Dubuque, Iowa

For four years "Jiggs" has shown his mettle as a Duhawk warrior. He called the signals during the majority of the games, the past season. Cool headed and possessed of an ample knowledge of gridiron tactics, "Jiggs" won the confidence of his teammates, and the fans as well, whenever he appeared in the lineup. An excellent field runner, Noonan could baffle an entire team by nabbing long passes and eluding an entire battery of tacklers, to secure repeated long gains. The touchdown which he registered against DePaul, after a brilliant dash around the entire team, saved the day for the Duhawks.

PHILIP SCHAEFER, 156 Center
Waterloo, Iowa

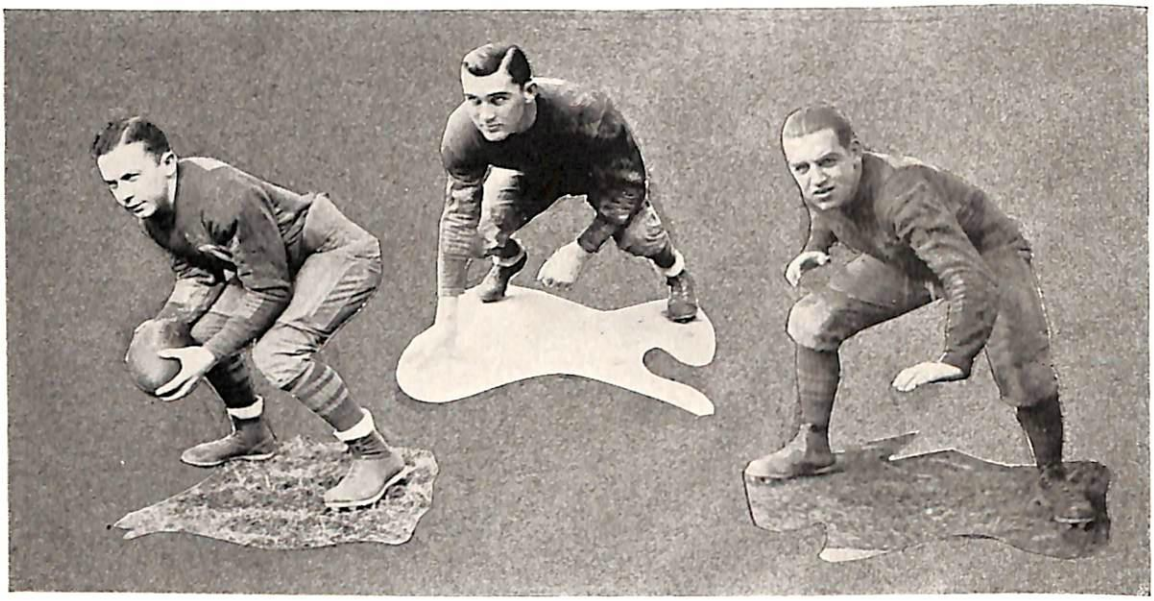

During his entire three year career as a Duhawk scrapper "Phil" has carried off the honors as first string center. His battling aggressiveness earned for him the title of "fighting Phil." This never-say-die spirit, coupled with a thorough understanding of football, made him one of the prizes of the Duhawk line, and helped to prove that a man need not be a heavyweight to hold his own at the center position. Phil always came through with the goods despite his lack of avoirdupois. He starred this year especially in the LaCrosse and Viator contests.

WENDELL RUSSELL, 178 Halfback
New Hampton, Iowa

With his performance in the annual Turkey day battle Russell capped a fitting climax to his career as one of the greatest halfbacks that ever carried the Duhawk colors. "Bill" was, unquestionably, the most valuable back on the local team for the past two seasons. Back at Denver they still talk of his exploits. He was marked as a triple-threat in every contest; when yardage was needed "Bill" got it if humanly possible; he was the most reliable punter on the team; and besides being an accurate passer he was reliable defense against the opponents' aerial attacks.

Luther plunges.

MAURICE MULLAN CLARENCE KOOB FRANK MULCAHY

MAURICE MULLAN, 145 Quarterback
Mason City, Iowa

"Moon" was not only the smallest member of the Columbia squad but was likewise the most diminutive player in any game wherein he participated. He proved, however, that lack of stature can be readily out-weighed by a proper proportion of gray matter. His size instead of being a hindrance actually aided him at times, and helped him to break through openings that it would have been nearly impossible for a larger man to utilize. "Moon" played the most quarters of any Duhawk sub, and called signals in practically every battle during the past season.

CLARENCE KOOB, 160 End
Dubuque, Iowa

A worthy successor to the great Bernie White, Koob was the most sensational player in the line. His deadly tackling practically always spelled disaster for any runner who attempted to circle his wing. He was always one of the first to crash into the opponent's backfield and smear their plays before they were well started. Koob's toe was the most trustworthy for gaining points after touchdowns, and he had, moreover, an uncanny accuracy in receiving passes and making them count. The St. Thomas and Luther games are merely samples of "Lefty's" stellar makeup.

Luther punts out of danger.

FRANCIS MULCAHY, 167 Guard
Chicago, Illinois

Through his gameness and fight "Mul" has earned recognition as a Duhawk warrior for the past two seasons. Always ready and willing to encounter the biggest of opponents, he was one of Coach Armstrong's most valued battlers. On the offensive "Mul" could always be trusted to do his share in making openings, if the signals sent the ball-carrier his way, and on the defensive he was likewise a troublesome man for his opponents to reckon with. "Mul" showed his mettle in the majority of the games during the 1927 season.

PAUL HAYES JOHN RYAN BERNARD HELLER

PAUL HAYES, 155 End
Oelwein, Iowa

The wing positions were practically the best cared for of all the places on the 1927 team, due to the adequate number of capable men whom Coach Armstrong had to choose from. Of these "Red" Hayes was not the least to be reckoned with by Duhawk opponents. Although light he was fast and shifty, and consequently a dangerous tackler for an opposing runner to meet. "Red" played as a regular for a great part of the season. He was not sensational but played consistently in every game in which he participated.

JOHN RYAN, 153 Halfback
Dubuque, Iowa

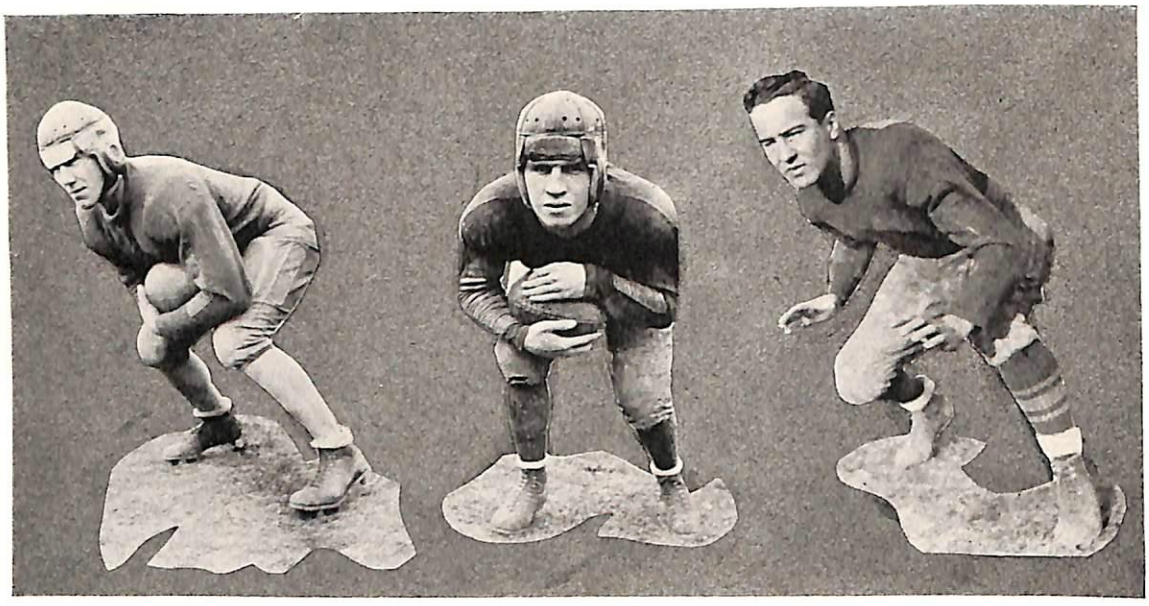

Although starting as a quarterback, Ryan changed to the half position for the greater part of the season. Whenever called to take either of the regulars' places, he performed in commendable fashion, and marked himself as a treasure for two more years as a Duhawk. In addition to being a clever runner and tackler, Jack was valuable for his ability to handle the ball with precision. He was a good passer and could work effectively as a receiver also. He has already distinguished himself for two seasons as an important cog in the local machine.

BERNARD HELLER, 185 Captain-elect, and Tackle
Sinsinawa, Wisconsin

For the past two seasons Duhawk fans have admired the explosions of this body of concentrated dynamite. If ever an opponent stops Heller, he then waits for the stretcher. Bernie has been one of the most substantial units in the Columbia forward wall, and his pet peeve on offensive plays is bowling over half the opposing line. One of the speediest men on the team, he frequently breaks through to stop opposing ball-carriers in their tracks. Bernie's choice as captain for next season was certainly a prudent selection, and Duhawk fans feel assured of a successful year, during his captaincy.

Russell gets off a pretty one.

JOSEPH LUKENS VINCENT O'BRIEN AMADEO PACETTI

JOSEPH LUKENS, 184 Fullback
Dubuque, Iowa

Playing his first season on the Duhawk squad, Lukens earned the right early in the year to a regular berth on the team, and performed at his position with the effectiveness of a veteran throughout the entire schedule. Through his driving power Joe showed the makings of another Joel Ball. Whenever ground was needed he could usually be trusted to get it. Possessed of an almost irresistible plunging force "Joe" was a tough man to face. In the Platteville game he fairly tore through the opponents' line. Lukens' playing in the Viator game was also outstanding.

Lukens pounds the LaCrosse forewall.

VINCENT O'BRIEN, 173 Fullback
Oelwein, Iowa

O'Brien fully demonstrated his football ability after Lukens was forced from the game because of injuries. In none of these battles did the opposing teams find the fullback plays less deadly. Whenever Vince carried the ball he could be found at the bottom of a pile behind the opposing line. His fine showing during the past season augurs well to assure him of the regular berth during the remaining two seasons for which he is still eligible. Vince was one of the outstanding performers in the battle against Regis College.

AMADEO PACETTI, 166 End
Kenosha, Wisconsin

"Patch" had IT, absolutely, when it came to a question of aggressiveness. He was one of the hardest hitting, scrappiest men on the squad for his size. This was "Patch's" first season as a Duhawk battler. Coach Armstrong never hesitated to send him into the game if a substitution appeared advisable. Through his determined, fighting spirit he kept his end of the line practically as intact as the regular player, and frequently managed to grab the opposing ball-carriers back of their own line. "Patch" distinguished himself especially in the Denver game, with Regis College.

KENNETH FERRING ALPHONSE LEARY CYRIL RYAN

KENNETH FERRING, 205 Tackle
Monticello, Iowa

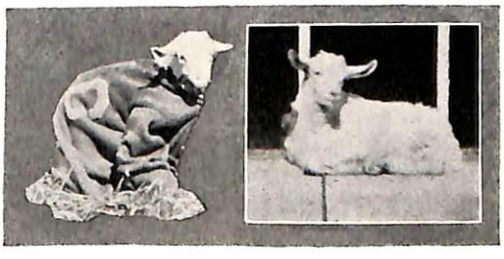

Out of the wealth of Freshman material reporting for the 1927 season Coach Armstrong picked Ferring to fill the strategic position left vacant by the graduation of "Whitey" Keegan. The stellar performance of "Gump" in practically every game proved conclusively that a wiser selection could not have been made. A play against his position was futile. "Gump" was one of the speediest men in the forward wall. Although he played excellent football in every game, fans saw "Gump" at his best in the St. Thomas and Luther battles.

ALPHONSE LEARY, 171 End
Waverly, Iowa

Leary was one of Coach Armstrong's greatest finds of the season. He entered the Duhawk lineup in the Viator game, and played his wing position with the confidence and effectiveness of a veteran. For the remainder of the season he held a regular berth. Al was fast and sufficiently light to bring any play within his reach. He promises to be one of the main cogs in the Duhawk machine for his remaining three seasons. In the LaCrosse game his playing was especially noteworthy.

CYRIL RYAN, 185 Guard
Marion, Iowa

The right side of the line was well bolstered up by the presence of this scrappy, hard-hitting Irishman. Ryan also was a Freshman who won for himself a regular berth on the team. Although not a sensational performer, any opposing player would testify that when "Mike" was determined to break through he did so. Whenever the ball-carrier was sent his way, "Mike" had an opening for him. With a reputation already firmly established his three remaining seasons should be banner years.

DUHAWKS BEAT LUTHER ELEVEN AT THEIR OWN GAME

Columbia Gives Saint Regis Stiff Battle

PURPLE AND GOLD DROP GAME, 7-6

Denver Evening Post, November 6. —Columbia College's fighting band of gridders from Dubuque, Iowa, surprised 4,000 fans Saturday afternoon at Regis field by giving the Regis Rangers a stiff battle before going down to a 7-6 defeat. . . . The Iowans launched an aerial attack late in the second quarter that carried them to a touchdown. . . The Duhawks excelled in forward passes and it was their aerial game that kept them dangerous. Russell surprised the crowd, when, with the ball on Regis's 44-yard line and fourth down, he tried a field goal from placement, but it was low and blocked, Rangers recovering it on the Duhawks' 42-yard line.

Duhawks Wallow to Victory

Telegraph-Herald and Times-Journal, October 2.—After wallowing for sixty minutes through three inches of mud and water the Purple and Gold Duhawk football team defeated the Wisconsin Miners by a score of 46 to 0. . . The Miners fought hard but the odds were too great against them and as a result the Duhawks have their first scalp of the season safely tucked away. . . Russell's long runs and consistent line smashing carried the ball within repeated scoring distance. . . . Captain Schwind at guard played one of the best games that has yet marked his career on the Duhawk team.

NOONAN'S RUN TIES DE PAUL

Special to Telegraph-Herald and Times-Journal, October 8.—With the score 14 to 7 in the final quarter, a long twenty-five yard forward pass fell into the eager hands of Koob, Columbia end, who scampered over the goal line for the touchdown which tied the score 14 to 14 and saved Columbia College from defeat by De Paul University here this afternoon. . . . Columbia's first touchdown came in the second quarter shortly after De Paul's second tally. Standing on his own forty-yard line, Noonan caught Saggau's punt and dashed down the sidelines for a spectacular sixty-yard run and touchdown, Koob counting the extra point.

LA CROSSE RALLIES; ANOTHER DRAW

Telegraph-Herald and Times-Journal, October 30.—Coming back with the strength that has kept them in first place in the Teachers Loop in Wisconsin, the LaCrosse Normal football team pushed over a touchdown on the last play of the game and after the gun had already sounded Charmoli sent a place kick squarely between the goal posts and tied the game for his team. The score was 13 to 13 and the game was one of the hardest fought that a Dubuque crowd has ever seen. . . . Columbia started out strong and made all their points in the first quarter, the first touchdown coming after the Purple and Gold line blocked one of Frey's punts.

Viator 6; Columbia 0

The Lorian, October 28.—Last Friday Columbia's football team went down fighting against the breaks, to Saint Viator's team by a score of 6-0. After holding a heavier team until the last forty-five seconds of play, the breaks overwhelmed them. . . . The team showed great defensive ability during the game. They held three times within their five-yard line, and the unexpectedness of the touchdown made the disappointment still greater. . . . Leary who started his first game in a Columbia uniform, was one of the outstanding players in the game and his work was considerable of a surprise because he was considered to have only an outside chance of starting.

AERIAL BATTLE BEATS NORSEMEN

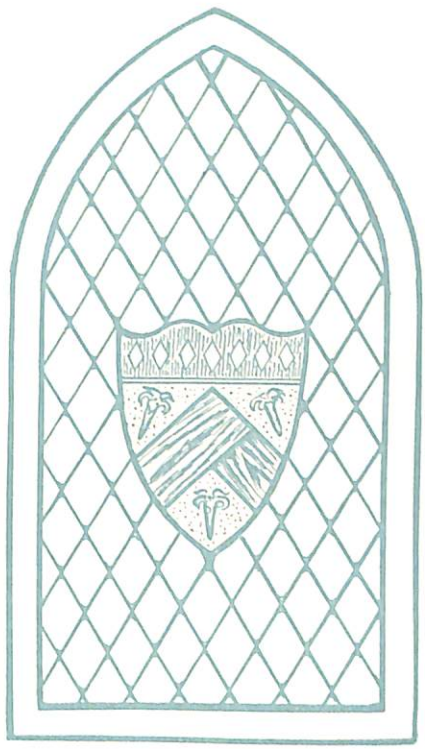

The Des Moines Register, November 25.—The Columbia college Duhawks dropped a curtain of victory on the final act of their 1927 grid season when they defeated Luther at its own game by passing to a 19 to 0 victory on Loras field here to-day. Eight Columbia Duhawks, who were playing the final game of their career covered themselves with glory by doing some of the flashiest work ever seen on a local gridiron. . . . Luther tried many passes but its work in this department of the game was in vain, as the Duhawks either knocked down the attempts or intercepted the passes.

Homecoming Crowd Witnesses Tie Game

Telegraph-Herald and Times-Journal, November 13.—Pounding a human wall that was almost impregnable, particularly in crucial moments, but never ceasing from whistle to gun, doggedly clinging to that territory so desirous to an opponent, Coach Johnny Armstrong's light brigade—the Purple and Gold eleven—fought St. Thomas's Cadets, of Saint Paul to a standstill Friday afternoon on Loras field and thereby won a draw with the Gophers, who were, because of their experience and size, a favorite to win. The score was nothing to nothing. . . It was the annual Armistice Day battle, but to some 2,000 gridiron admirers it was just Columbia's Homecoming.

DETROIT MISTREATS DUHAWKS 58 - 0

Special to Telegraph-Herald and Times-Journal, October 15.—Columbia College met its master here this afternoon and though it fought valiantly, University of Detroit had little trouble in crushing the Iowans under a 58 to 0 score. . . . Columbia suffered heavily from the wind that blew diagonally across the field and Russell never was able to get away a good punt. It was this weakness that enabled Detroit to keep play in Iowa territory almost from the start. . . . Detroit had little trouble nullifying all attempts to penetrate its territory. Several times Columbia threatened by intercepting passes only to lose the advantage when the Detroit eleven retaliated.

Basketball

The Season

AS the curtain lowered on the 1927 gridiron season on Turkeyday, the thud of the basketball was already resounding from the hardwood court. Serious attention was now directed to the basketeers in preparation for a strenuous season in the Iowa Conference.

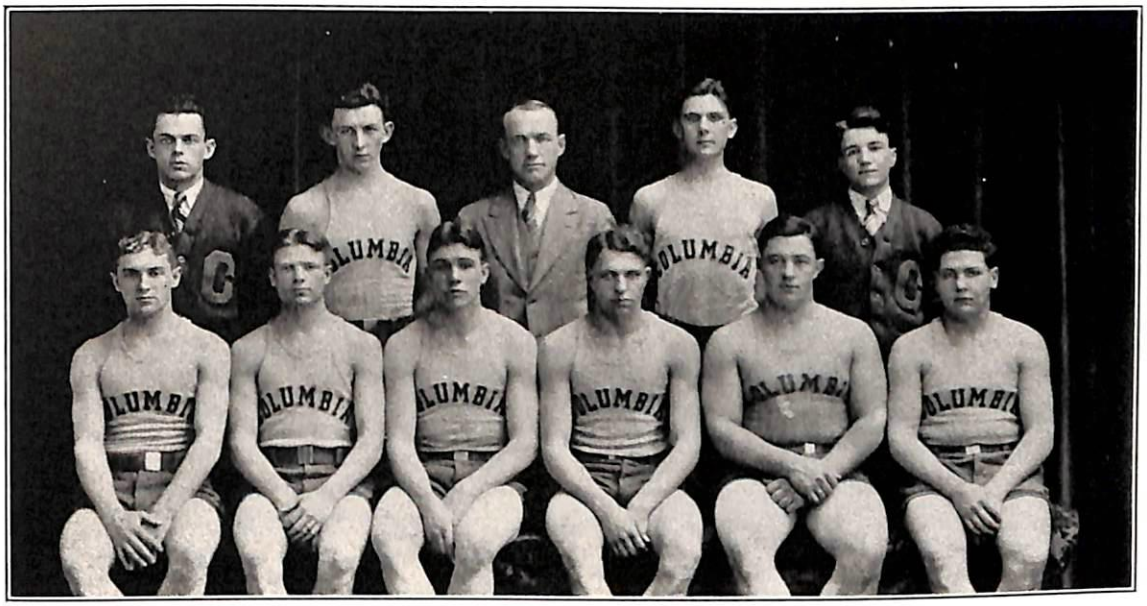

A large number of candidates responded to the call of Coach Armstrong and especially worthy of note was the response of the first year men at Columbia. For several weeks the preliminary preparations continued under the directing eye of the coach, and the guidance of Captain Doll and the stellar pony guard, "Eddie" Brennan. It was necessary to cut the squad to facilitate the instruction of the more promising cage prospects, and about thirty men were released. The holiday recess halted the cage activities for a few weeks but on the return of the basketeers a serious course of instruction was entered upon, in preparation for the first contest of the season with the Miners.

In the first battle of the 1928 schedule the Duhawks showed a strong offensive with a large number of Freshman cagers supplying the power. After dropping a hard fought contest to the Hoosier cagers from Valparaiso the Duhawks went into a bad slump.

A number of bitter defeats were chalked up against the Pony brigade before they again hit their true stride. The battle with Iowa Wesleyan was the turning point of a fairly successful season. Showing a remarkable improvement the Purple and Gold became one of the most feared quints of the conference. In successive contests they dethroned the leaders of the league in close and thrilling battles. Simpson, Parsons, and Luther fell before the victorious march of the Duhawks in three consecutive games. In the closing contests of the season the Ponies were defeated on foreign soil by the sharpshooters of LaCrosse and Luther.

The Purple and Gold cagers finished the season with a fair record of seven wins and nine defeats for a season average of .438. The season may be classed as a successful one in view of the fact that on a number of occasions four Freshmen composed the first string varsity. "Eddie" Brennan the stellar pony guard was injured in one of the early contests and was unable to don the Pony togs for the remainder of the season. This misfortune opened a big gap in the Pony lineup which had to be filled with new material.

At the close of the season the Duhawk squad had dwindled to nine men. Several of the first string men failed to register for the second semester, while several others were prevented from reporting due to serious injuries. Captain Doll, Haebig, White, Ennis, Ferring, Coan, Finley, Weber, and Kieler were the remaining members of the squad when the 1928 campaign ended. The cage prospects for the season of 1929 are the brightest in the history of the institution. All the members but three of this year's squad are Freshman who will have three years to fight and to carry the standard of the Purple and Gold on the basketball court.

LAWRENCE DOLL

LAWRENCE DOLL Captain and Center
Apple River, Wisconsin

"One of Columbia's greatest centers" is the formula by which Larry will go down in basketball history. As captain of the Purple and Gold, he led the scoring attack with nearly a hundred points for the season, giving powerful support to the scoring column for every game in which he participated. His dribbling was clever and deceptive to the opposing guards. At the center post Larry started the Columbia attack, as he outjumped his opponents on nearly every occasion. Under the bucket he raised havoc with the enemy's score by tipping them in from all angles. The brilliant comeback of the Pony quint near the close of the season was due in a large measure to his fighting instinct and never-die spirit. This year was Larry's last and he ended gloriously.

EDWARD C. BRENNAN Captain-elect and Guard
Waterloo, Iowa

For three years Eddie has fought for the Purple and Gold to maintain her standards on the hardwood court. In recognition of his wonderful ability and long faithful service, his teammates chose him to guide the Duhawks in the battles of 1929. Brennan, one of the smallest men to don the uniform of the Purple and Gold, is also considered as one of the speediest and cleverest of guards in the history of Columbia. Though handicapped for the greater part of the past season by a bad injury, Ed demonstrated that he still was the peer of guards in the few games in which he participated. Last year he was selected as guard on the first team of all-conference stars by several sport writers and he will beyond a doubt prove to be one of the best guards in the conference in his last year of inter-collegiate competition.

EDWARD C. BRENNAN

JOHN ENNIS Forward
Kewanee, Illinois

Playing his second year as a regular on the Pony five, John Ennis distinguished himself as a real guarding forward. Jack followed his man closely and on numerous occasions succeeded in taking away the ball preparatory to a drive for the basket. He was one of the fastest men on the squad and gave the opposition plenty to worry about. On several occasions his field goals enabled Columbia to emerge victor.

PAUL COAN Guard
Osage, Iowa

In his first year of college basketball Paul Coan developed into one of the best guards of recent Columbia history. He never failed to get his man or to keep him at a distance from the basket. The peculiar feature of Paul's guarding is evident when one considers that he committed only 15 personal fouls for a season of sixteen games. He specialized on long shots. But the best of the story is that he will have three more seasons with the Purple and Gold.

KENNETH FERRING Guard
Monticello, Iowa

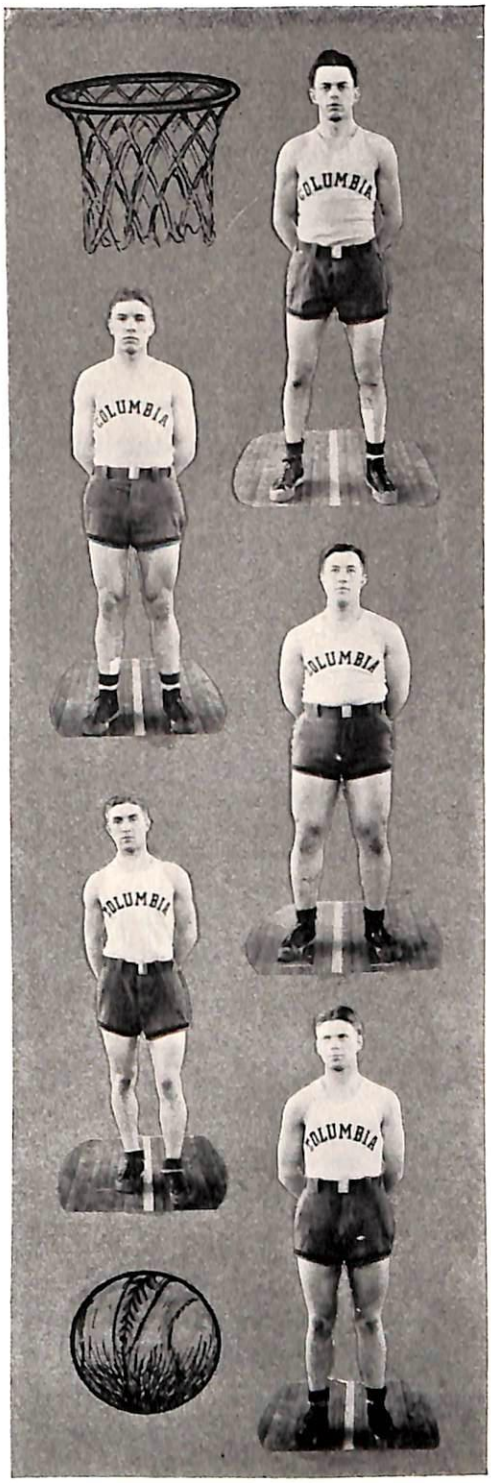

Kenneth Ferring has made an auspicious beginning toward a great record as a college guard. He was conceded by one of the visiting teams to be the speediest man on the squad. With his speed, he had an accurate eye so that he placed with the scoring leaders of the Duhawks. "Gump" played a great defensive game but he was equally effective in leading the Pony attack.

ROBERT HAEBIG Forward
West Bend, Wisconsin

Whenever Haebig started tossing them in, the game was on ice. No angle was a deterrent nor any distance too great. His ability to loop them in from all corners placed him second in the column of scorers with over 80 points for the season. He was the main cog in the Duhawk forward plays and he was always there a little ahead of his guard.

FRANCIS WHITE Forward
Eldora, Iowa

White's contribution to the team was dash and aggressiveness. He made a good mate for either Haebig or Ennis at forward, and never failed to add something to the total score before the final whistle. White has three years ahead of him in which to carve out a memorable career before he stows away his trunks for good.

Game by Game

COLUMBIA, 35; WISCONSIN SCHOOL OF MINES, 8. January 9.

Showing a tight defense and a fast-breaking offense, the Columbia five overwhelmingly defeated the Miners in the opening game of the season. Doll, Coan, Haebig and Ennis piled up a big count.

COLUMBIA, 23; VALPARAISO, 26. January 11.

The rangy cagers from the Hoosier state outscored the Ponies in an overtime period and annexed the victory. Brennan tied the score with a long field goal as the gun sounded. White, the flashy Freshman forward, led the scoring from the field for the Duhawks.

COLUMBIA, 14; DE PAUL, 18. January 18.

The Ponies failed to penetrate De Paul's perfect man-to-man defense. The visitors carried on a stalling attack throughout the contest. Ferring showed much promise at guard.

COLUMBIA, 21; SIMPSON, 39. January 20.

Simpson handed a bad drubbing to the Purple and Gold in their first Iowa Conference game. Doll and Haebig kept the locals in the running.

COLUMBIA, 30; DES MOINES UNIVERSITY, 25. January 21.

With Doll and Brennan leading the attack the Des Moines U. cagers fell victims to the Ponies. Brennan was injured in this contest which subsequently prevented him from donning the basketball togs for the balance of the season.

COLUMBIA, 21; ST. AMBROSE, 33. January 28.

The collapse of Columbia's defense in the last few minutes of play resulted in their defeat. Doll and Ferring worked sensationally. A repetition of the Davenporters' strong comeback of their first game spelled defeat for the Duhawks in their second encounter.

COLUMBIA, 27; PARSONS, 29. February 3.

The locals continued their losing streak the next evening but only after a great battle. Coan and Doll went on a scoring spree with 19 points collectively.

COLUMBIA, 16; BUENA VISTA, 30. February 7.

The Duhawks failed miserably against a weak conference quintet. Doll was leading Pony scorer.

COLUMBIA, 26; IOWA WESLEYAN, 24. February 11.

Demonstrating a punch and a drive the Duhawks scored a sensational victory with Doll counting five field goals.

COLUMBIA, 25; SIMPSON, 19. February 18.

The rebuilt Pony brigade added another scalp by defeating their previous conqueror. Ferring and Ennis played a good game.

COLUMBIA, 23; PARSONS, 21. February 20.

Captain Doll played great basketball as the Duhawk quint knocked Parsons from the title position.

COLUMBIA, 19; LUTHER, 12. February 24.

Luther was the fourth consecutive victim of the Purple and Gold. A wonderful defense silenced the opposing sharpshooters.

COLUMBIA, 28; LA CROSSE, 24. February 28.

Haebig's clever dribbling and Ferring's tight defense were the features of Columbia's victory over their strong opponent.

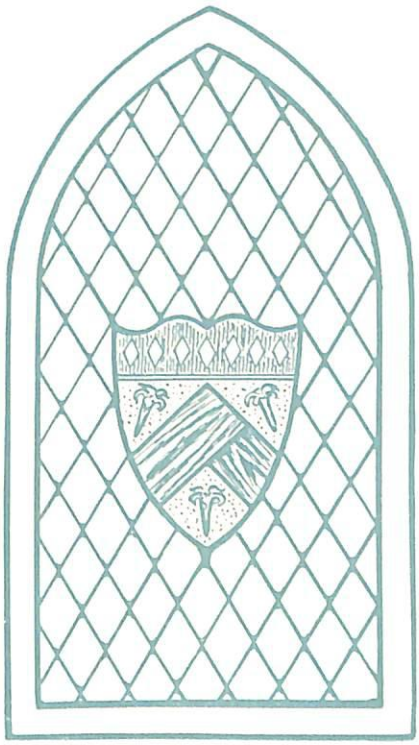

COLUMBIA, 32; LA CROSSE, 38. March 3.

The tables were reversed at La Crosse due mainly to their spectacular long shots. Ferring added 11 points to the Duhawk score.

COLUMBIA, 22; LUTHER, 28. March 6.

In a fast game the Pony five split the series with Luther in the curtain game of the season. Haebig's deceptive dribbling and Ferring's close defense made the Duhawk quint dangerous.

Track

The 1927 Season

THE track situation last spring was none too promising when Coach Layden issued his call for volunteers. Captains Keegan and Lynch were the only lettermen to respond but the lack of veterans was more than atoned for by the wealth of new material disclosed during the season.

In the class meets, the value of Cotter as a stellar dash man was confirmed. Not satisfied with taking first in the 100 yard and 220 yard dash, he broke the college record made by Art Goebel by dashing off the 440 in 55 seconds. Wendell Russell shattered the javelin record established by Bernie White with a cast of 157 feet, 4 inches, while James C. Regan set a new mark by taking the two mile event in 11 minutes 11.4 seconds.

Wendell Russell

A team consisting of Captains Lynch and Keegan, Heller, Pacetti, and Cotter, was sent to the Drake Relays. In the 100 yard dash, Cotter placed fourth in his heat. In the mile relay, Cotter, Keegan, Lynch, and Heller ran fifth in their heat; while in the half mile relay, Cotter, Keegan, Pacetti, and Heller placed fourth in the event.

Both the Iowa Conference and Western Interstate Conference meets were held on Loras Field. The Iowa Conference meet was won by Iowa State Teachers in a close battle with Parsons. Simpson College placed third. Geneva of Parsons was high point man.

Columbia, with a total of 8 11/14 points finished seventh. Cotter made the best showing for the Duhawks by placing second in the 220 and third in the 100 yard dash. Keegan placed fourth in the 220. Reichert tied with Rindin of Penn for fourth in the pole vault. Hogan and Dunn were among the seven who tied for fourth in the high jump. Columbia relay team placed third.

Lombard won the Western Interstate Conference meet with 92½ points. The Wisconsin team took first in twelve of the fourteen events, Thomas with 19½ points being high point man. Columbia, with a total of 31½ points, was runner-up. De Paul was the only other team to compete.

Besides winning the 100 yard dash, Cotter placed third in the 220, and fourth in the broad jump. Russell took second in the javelin event, and low hurdles, and third in the high hurdles. Heller placed second in the 440 yard dash, while Reichert took second in the pole vault and fourth in both hurdles. Dunn finished third in the pole vault and tied for second in the high jump. Regan came in fourth in the mile run, while Lukens placed fourth in the javelin event.

1927 Lettermen

JOHN COTTER was the main factor in the Columbia track team, gaining fame in the 100, 220, and 440 yard dashes, the broad jump, and the relays. In the Iowa Conference meet, John accounted for more than half of the Duhawk points.

BERNIE HELLER was famous chiefly for his ability to step off the 440, and as a member of the relay teams. The relay team placed third in both meets, besides giving a good account of itself at the Drake relays. This year's relay team will be built around Heller.

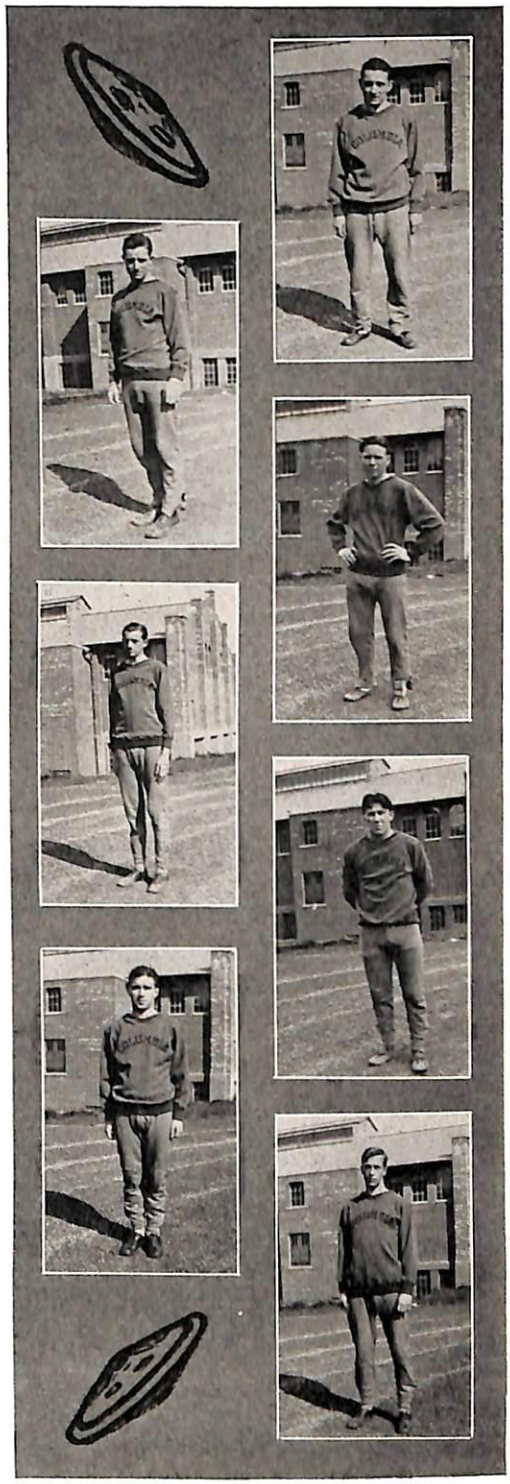

JOHN HOGAN'S merits lay chiefly in his talent for jumping — either for height or distance. He placed fourth in the high jump in the Iowa Conference meet.

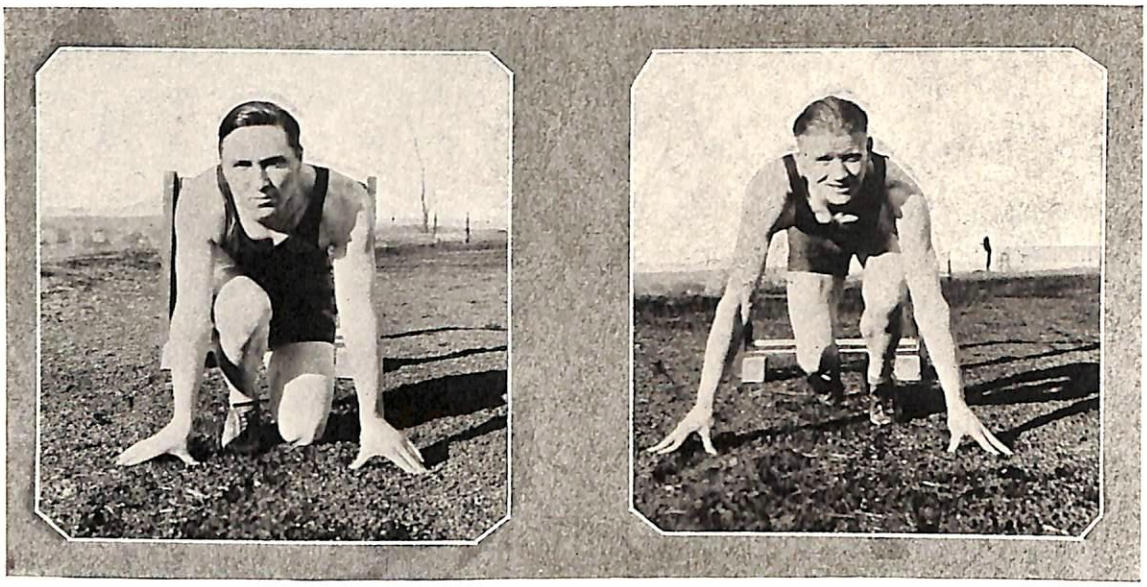

LOUIS DUNN was peculiarly suited for high jumping because of his height. He merely stepped over the stick without any seeming effort. He scored also as a pole-vaulter.

JOSEPH LUKENS was the best all around weight man developed during the season. He was equally handy with the shot and discus, and threw the javelin for fourth in the Western Interstate meet.

JAMES C. REGAN was Columbia's stellar distance man, specializing in the mile event. He broke the College two-mile record and placed in the Western Interstate meet.

LAWRENCE REICHERT was quite capable of taking the place made vacant by Reider in the pole vault. The Dickinson, N. D. lad made a name for himself in the Western Interstate meet, when he stepped out of his own proper field to take fourth in both hurdles.

Passball

AS a fit substitute for the inter-collegiate game of football the various classes at Columbia have been accustomed to carry on their friendly class feud on the football field by means of the milder game of passball. During the year 1927-28 the classes carried on the old tradition with the usual gusto, to the great enjoyment of the student body and faculty passball fans as well as to their own pleasure as participants.

The several classes organized their representative teams early after the opening of school in September and carried on a tournament throughout the football season. According to the schedule drawn up by the faculty manager, Father Skahill, each class team was booked to meet every other eleven twice during the season.

The outcome of the battle was this year, as is rather unusual, enormously in favor of the Freshman team, at that time the "dark horses" of intramural athletics. Under the captaincy of Schollian their team pulled through the season, with the closest thing to defeat on their books a tie game with the Seniors under Eddie Butler, and another with the Sophomores under Kayser. The Junior eleven, in spite of Captain Wilkins and the hard working Eddie Bodensteiner, emerged the unfortunate entry in the tourney.

The favored passball tourney was the object of much interest all during the season. The game is a modification of football adapted to the convenience of those desiring a shorter and cleaner game. The rules of play are the same as those of football, excepting that blocking is barred, tagging takes the place of tackling, and the distance to be made in four downs is twenty yards. The beauty of the game consists in the aerial play which is practically the only form of tactics used.

Basketball

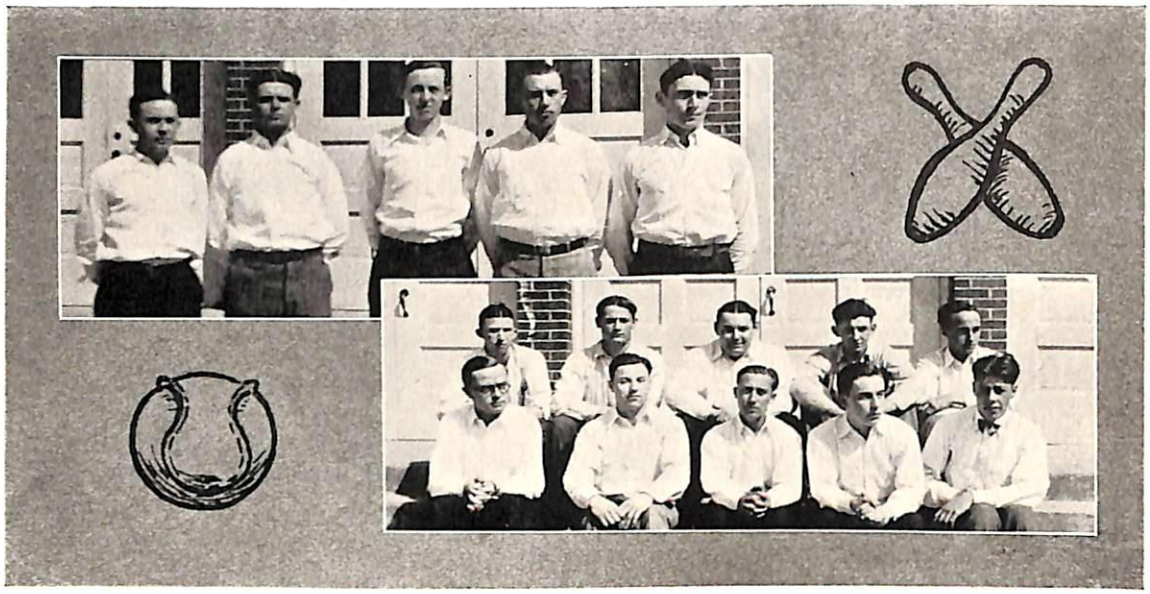

THE class basketball title for the season of 1928 has passed from the champion Freshman quint of '27 to the camp of the Senior class. Dropping one game throughout the season, and that by a single point to last year's title holders, the present Sophomore class, the Seniors established the record percentage of .900 in ten games. In the rival Day Student and Sophomore squads the champion quint found a pair of menacing rivals. But the best efforts of the runners up could not put them ahead of the Seniors at any stage of the race though their attacks were ever efficient. The team standings and the individual score records follow:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Seniors	9	1	.900
Day Students	7	3	.700
Sophomores	6	4	.600
Freshmen A.	4	6	.400
Freshmen B.	2	8	.200
Juniors	2	8	.200

SCORING COLUMN

Schumacher, L., (Senior)	72 points
Koob, (Day Student)	35 points
Bodensteiner, (Junior)	31 points
Mullan, (Senior)	22 points
Crowley, (Freshmen A.)	18 points

The interclass tournament, managed by Father Skahill and Phil Schaefer, was a thrilling race throughout. When the games are as widely discussed by the student fans as were those of the season of '28 the competition must be keen. It is the opinion of many that this was the best interclass tourney of the year. All credit to the participants for making it so. The members of the winning team now have individual trophies as reward for their part in the tourney.

Indoor Baseball and Bowling

THE interclass rivalry between the various classes of Loras Hall during the term of 1927-28 entered the fields of indoor baseball and bowling as well as the other branches of sport. The indoor baseball tourney took up all the time during the fall which was favorable to that sport and during the winter months the class bowlers paralleled the efforts of the interclass basketball competitors in their own line of ten-pin tumbling.

The battle of the maples was mainly between the Junior and Senior teams who claimed most of the best talent of the student body. The first tourney of the season was taken by the Juniors and in the second, in which handicaps were granted the trailing teams according to their past records, the Seniors took the honors. The Juniors, however, claim all the season's records for their class. Calvi set the individual high score at 213 pins and the individual high average at 180. The high team score, set by the Junior five, went up to 880 pins.

After the conclusion of these tourneys a singles and doubles open-to-all tourney was run off and money prizes awarded. Leonard won the singles prize, and the Owens-Calvi team claimed the doubles.

Among the soft ball batsmen the Sophomore nine slugged their way to a clear title for the year in the line of indoor baseball. Captained by Farrell and composed entirely of veteran material returned to the field from the previous season, the Sophs established a perfectly clean record for themselves. The Senior nine, however, was to them a formidable, though not an invincible rival. The indoor tourney was generally pronounced one of the most interesting and hard played in recent years.

Wonder why John Eulberg asked Tracy if he were a Freshman?

What?

I don't believe that it was a success. Russell was out of town and Farnan, Kress, and Conlon couldn't manage to get there. So it wasn't a success. "Moon" Mullan also was out of town and Rothenhoefer didn't succeed in getting a bid. So it wasn't a success. Bug-house fables—Seery forgot to buy a corsage. We heard that Louis Fautsch brought a bunch of violets for a corsage. Dailey spent a small sum on the heiress to the Judge's fortune. In spite of satire, Dick and Ag got along very well. Everything went well until the gas line on the Dodge broke. That was the climax. And "Van" Conlon . . tssk . . tssk . . tssk . . we won't say anything especially about "Van" but he's one fellow everyone must look up to . . nine and a half . . tssk . . tssk. Anyway, next year we are going to have that all taken care of by Easter Monday. Take care of what? Ask Francis Ryan. Oh! Oh! Oh! we almost forgot John Eulberg—"Oh, Father, time passes so quickly." All which reminds us of a little story:

A Columbia Freshman was asked to give the defiinition of a few words in a recent test. This is what the teacher received:

Dachshund—A low down dog.

Dust—Mud with the juice out of it.

Smile—A sudden rush of the teeth to the face.

To The Juniors

Just a few parting words we must give you. In your Senior year you will meet with many things with which you are unacquainted. You must learn to adapt yourselves to the varying conditions and circumstances. We must give many of you special admonitions. Don't let Eddie Brennan sleep over often—if you do, he will fall into the slovenly habits of the Schumacher Bros., who visit the exercises only occasionally. Take good care of Perion and Wilkens—don't let them fall into the deep pits of a jazz orchestra. Watch "Van" Conlon, lest "Blondie" should become deficient in some of the higher arts. Don't let Fitzpatrick pal around with Fautsch. "Fitz" should seek better and more intelligent boy friends. Fautsch does do a terrible job of consoling. Have a care, lest the "Duke" falls into the terrible candy-selling habits of Deitz and Wolf. Show mercy unto Feltes. Besides being a strong Democrat and a self-styled booster of Smithism, "Boots" is to be Brennan's roommate in the year to come. That in itself is a plea for mercy—ask Schaefer.

Place as many Seniors in Sleepy Hollow as you can. Keep the standards of that untainted hall as high as we have kept them and you will have them higher than any previous class. Remember, future Seniors,—let the Juniors do the initiating. It is beneath the dignity of any Senior to assist in initiating such things as Freshmen. . . But one thing we will bequeath you—that is—the power to have and to hold the Annual Glee Club try-outs. These must take place in room 351 during the second week of the first semester.

When you are in a special class session, rule out my privilege of chewing tobacco and expectorating in the little green wash-tub. Keep your class economically, socially, financially, religiously, and politically as fit as the class of '28 and you will feel at the end of your Senior year identically the same as we feel now—happy to be clever enough to get out and sorry to be leaving our pals behind.

THE SENIOR CLASS, '28.

Sedlak: I hear the barber shops have started a price war.

McNally: I hope there's no cut-throat competition. (I did it with my little scissors.)

* * *

Metz: Men can get pearls from oysters.

Doll: Yes, And some women can get wrist watches from lobsters.

* * *

Dean: Bernacki is not only a good boy but a Superior boy.

Glass: Thinking made me what I am today.

White: You must have had some funny thoughts.

* * *

Prof.: Take this down, "Ere the Sabbath close."

Olinger (writing): Air the Sabbath clothes.

* * *

Dietz: (in a drama) I will now put on a pair of rubber boots and erase my tracks, thereby fooling the bloodhounds.

"Sceeb" Calvi was stepping out to Sunday dinner. Among the side dishes served was one of pickled beets, of which our Anthony was very fond. After some hesitation he said, "I'll take a stack of those reds, please."

The movies are going to film Rip Van Winkle. We see where Lucas and Ennis get title roles.

At one of the championship kitten-ball games we had fair visitors on the campus. They were remarking about the excellent performance of 'Tony' Chihak, who was pitching. "My", said one of the girls, "Isn't he good. He hits the bat with the ball every time no matter how the batters hold it."

Butler: I lost all my friends last night.

O'Brien: How come?

Butler: New rule. The faculty members can't have cars.

Apologies to Haskins

Everyday.

Dear Dad:

This is to inform you that I am studying at Columbia with the greatest diligence, but the matter of money stands greatly in the way of my social activities, as it is now two weeks since I spent the last of what you sent me. The city is expensive and makes many demands, especially the feminine portion of it.

I need a tuxedo, derby, stiff shirt, and studs for the big formal and don't forget enough money to buy a nice corsage. You should see the outfit that John Eulberg has. It's simply gorgeous. You know, Dad, you always have taken great pride in having your son dressed as well as other students.

I also need a little financial backing to keep up the famous Columbia traditions, at Oelwein, New Hampton and Mason City.

June fourth is commencement day. Drive down in the Packard. You can stay with Uncle John. I have a date with the nicest girl in town.

I must go now, Dad, and sign the book on the hour. You see they have a hard time keeping track of the time down here. Awaiting your check, I am

Your Loving Son,

A. FRESHMAN.

Tracy: These poems are the children of my brain.

Schuetz: Poor little orphans.

* * *

Dave Stanton: Give me a glass of water, please.

Barber—You aren't going to faint, are you?

Dave—Oh, I don't think so; I just wanted to see if my mouth would hold water.

* * *

Prof: If the president, vice-president, and all the members of the cabinet died, who would officiate?

Carberry: The undertaker.

Schieltz (to druggist): I want some consecrated lye.

Druggist: You mean concentrated lye.

Schieltz: Oh, it does nutmeg any difference, that's what I camphor, what does it sulphur?

* * *

Eddie Brennan: How much is a ticket to Waterloo?

Ticket Agent. Three dollars and thirty six cents.

Eddie Brennan: Gosh, everything is high here. They sell them for two dollars and twenty eight cents over at Cedar Rapids.

"I could a tale unfold."

Dailey: Lend me a five on account.
Seery: On account of what?
Dailey: On account of a date.

* * *

First Pre-Medic: Where did Iodine?

Second Student of Bones: Wherever Carbonate.

* * *

Heller: Give me some of your apple?

Finley: Absolutely not. Eve gave Adam some of an apple and has been criticized for it ever since.

* * *

Prof.: My watch has stopped. How long have I been talking?

Phelan: There's a calendar out in the hall.

Schmitz: How does your cigarette lighter work?

Wirka: Fine. I can light it with one match now.

* * *

Rothenhoefer: Is your face for sale?
Schuetz: Why?
Rothenhoefer: It has such a vacant look.

* * *

Schaefer: Whatever I say goes.

Brennan: Then talk to yourself for a while.

* * *

Seery: What kind of tobacco are you smoking, Phil?

Dailey: I didn't ask him.

What? Do you mean to say that you have dated "him?" Why He's only a Freshman. All right for you. Oh, you will give me a date after all. What? You were only fooling? You think that you are smart. Oh, wait. There's someone coming in the office. Goodie, it's only Wilbur Coffey. I thought at first it was a member of the faculty. Yes, I'll be right over. Shall we go riding? Your car is in the garage? Well, I'll meet you down at——'s home. Bye Bye."

Justin Conlon: Let's go to the formal dance, eh?

Kress: No, let's go to the show.

Vincent Conlon: You are forgetting that we have an exam, fellows.

Gene Reilly: I'll tell you, fellows, I'll toss up a coin. If it falls heads, we'll go to the formal dance. It it falls tails, we'll go to the show. But if it stands on edge, we'll study.

* * *

Fitzpatrick: How's life as a Freshman?

'Red' Glennon: As yet, I have had only a hazy idea.

* * *

One girl: Eddie Butler isn't as big a flirt as he used to be.

Another girl: Has he reformed or reduced?

Remember when the train stopped at Omaha? Before we had hardly time to get off it we heard a nice, little, feminine voice ask, "Is Bernard Heller on this train?" 'member that, Huh?

* * *

Nice Young Girl: So, you've sold your car?

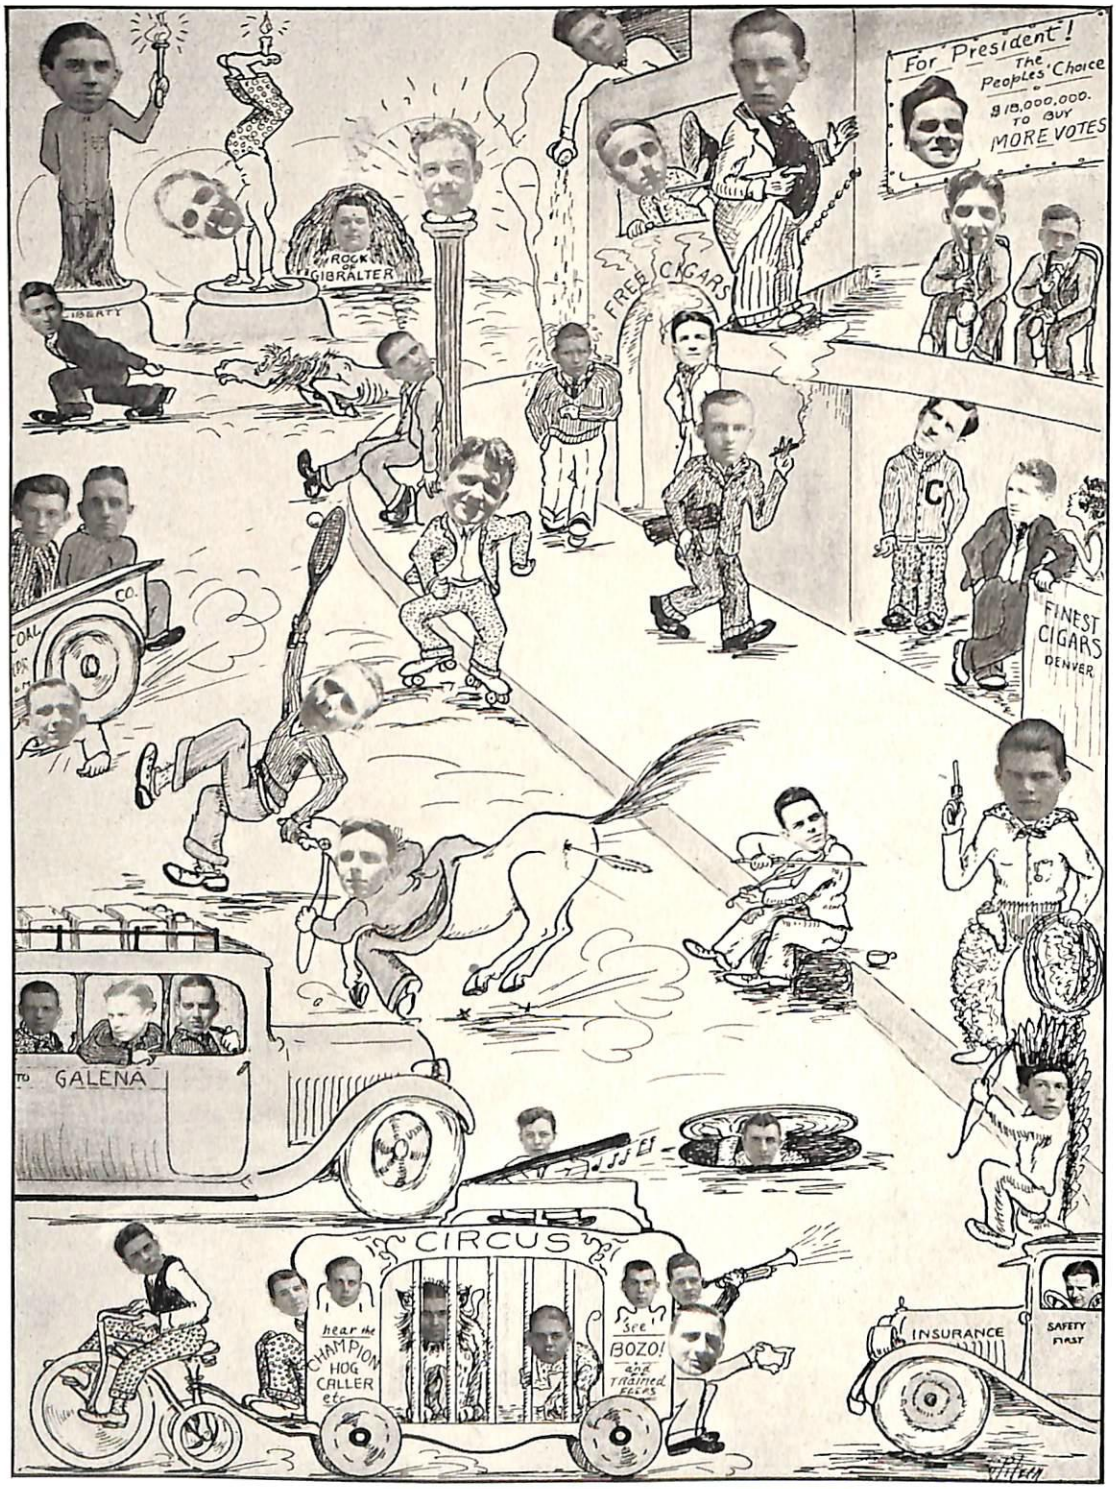

Ferring: Yes. The company took it back. I couldn't buy it anymore.

The Bully of Poker Flat came around to Buddie's room one night. He bellowed, "I kin lick any man in this place. No three men here kin put me out" Whereupon, "Buddy" and Hamm threw out the unwelcome visitor. He got up, brushed himself off and said, "Well, I guess two kin do in a pinch, if you're shorthanded."

Local Youths Make Good

(The following are a number of clippings taken from home town papers.)

"He (U. Kapler) will be assisted by Vincent Conlon of Dubuque, advertising manager, and Harold Lafferty of Marion, business manager." Well it seems that "Van" and the "Duke" are going to work together next year. We fear for "Van," he's honest. But that Lafferty boy . . tssk . . tssk . . he's not so straight. Imagine getting one's foot broken in order to get out of a few classes!

"Lloyd Glass, Columbia College, Freshman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Glass of Cresco, was one of the five students selected as associate editors of the Lorian staff for next year. He was awarded the position on the merits of a paper written and submitted as a tryout. There were many fine papers submitted and it is an honor as well as a mark of capability for Lloyd to receive the position." (Yes, the position pays about $1700 per annum).

"Elmer Becker of this city will appear in concert with Columbia College Vested Choir in Oelwein, New Hampton, and Mason City. Mr. Becker has a remarkable voice. We, back in his home town, wish him much success and wish to congratulate him in our own small way."

Customer: I'll have some chicken.

Ennis: Would you care for drum-sticks?

Customer: No. I came here to eat, not to make music.

SOLICITORS—The solicitors, all fourth Acs, who early in the year talked up THE PURGOLD to the underclassmen, were certainly live wires. As a result the loyalty list of the Academy is keeping close to that of the College. Finley was star salesman. Holbach, Schares, Sims, Tangney, Gossman, Krocheski, Kolfenbach, Graham, Ernsdorf, Boyd, Conlon, Mullin, Runde, and Cassidy were the other commendable workers.

ART STAFF—Next year the Academy will find difficulty in finding two such faithful workers as Doyle and Phillip. The Kodak club financed all the snapshots and as far as work goes the Kodak club is synonomous with Doyle and Philip. Linn and Rowan, '28, deserve credit for this year's cartoons.

EDITORIAL—The editors for this section of THE PURGOLD were largely chosen from the Cee-Ay staff. The spirit of the Academy has been well expressed by John Martin, the editor-in-chief, associate editor Meinert, and their co-workers: Ernsdorff, Farnan, Jaeger, Keifer, Kirk, Linehan, and Lorenz.

Our Story

FRESHIES.—We were green, like all before us, and we came from the wildest places—Montana, and even wilder, Chicago, and Dubuque (not so wild), and from other points. We fitted into the place—a singular feat for Freshmen; usually such beginners are more out of activities than in, but not so with us. Boys who were destined to be habitually on the honor roll took their places with some who were not to be. Conforti, showing signs of future prowess, was on the football and the basketball squads. Gehrig played on the champion heavy-Midgets (football) that year; Roman Schares made his dramatic debut in The Aviator; Ernsdorff and Capesius shared honors with him. Linehan showed early signs of short story ability.

SECOND YEAR.—Not so green. Holbach, Gehrig, and Conforti upheld our honor in football. Martin placed third in the short story; members of the class shone on all teams in intra-mural football; Conforti, Kolfenbach, Linn, and Holbach placed on basketball teams; Linehan, Kress, Cassidy, and Higgins landed on the Cee-Ay. Schares won first in elocution. Among the eighteen honor students were Capesius, Cassidy, Martin, Coffey, Kirk, G. Schmitz, Conlon, and Kolfenbach. We were waking up.

THIRD YEAR.—We were awake. Kolfenbach, Higgins, Sandke, Frommelt, Holbach, Runde, McParland, McCarville, and Conforti starred in football. Gehrig was elected captain. To the honor students were added Runde and Tangney. Schwartz, Kolfenbach, Conforti, Holbach, and Linn were basketeers. McManus and Frommelt handled the remailing committee for the missions. On the Cee-Ay, Martin and Kress became editors, with Linehan and Meinert as associates, helped by Cassidy, Doyle, Higgins, and Farnan. In elocution Conforti took second and Higgins third. Runde, Kolfenbach, Gehrig, and Schwartz brought fame on track. We were well represented.

FOURTH YEAR.—Over the top. Now is our day. Runde is president, Kolfenbach vice-president, Linehan treasurer, and Graham valedictorian. A graduation gown of grey is decided upon—quite a distinctive innovation. George Doyle and Al Phillip direct that huge, picture-making industry. Meinert, Cassidy, Graham, and Kirk forward the interests of the History Club, and arrange a play: The Submarine Shell. Schares and Meinert draw attention in the college play: Number 17. Fourteen of the nineteen lettermen in football are SENIORS. Kolfenbach, Conforti, Holbach, Gehrig, and McParland receive all-state honors. Meinert and Martin merit leadership in THE PURGOLD. Linehan and Meinert are editors of the Cee-Ay, while Kreiser and Lorenz join the staff. Linehan writes the prize short story. Martin and Sherman take second and third in the essay. Captain Kolfenbach, with Schwartz, Conforti, Linn, Oeth, Kenline, and Finley lead basketball. D. Fleege and Sherman appear among the honor roll men, while Ernsdorff, Jaeger, Lorenz, Linehan, Doyle and Meinert keep up their old reputation on the same. Higgins and Sandke join the minstrels. Conforti is second and Meinert third in elocution. Runde leads the tracksters. Schmitz is student-manager. In all—not so bad.

Seniors' Advice to Third Academics

"So let your light shine before men, that they may see your works." Leadership through example is the great responsibility of a Senior. Honesty, perserverance, loyalty, manliness, ambition,—these are the seeds of worthy Seniors. "As a good tree bringeth forth good fruit, so shall your example influence your underclassmates."

Seniors' Advice to Second Academics

The third year is frequently the lazy year. To be a doer you need a definite goal to spur you on to do your best. Find yourselves therefore in the second year. Struggle with all your might towards your goal. Don't let down in your scholastic efforts, but learn to do things thoroughly.

Seniors' Advice to First Academics

On you depends the Columbia of tomorrow. Extra curricular activities are the barometer of Columbia's spirit—help to make it register. Don't wait till your third or fourth year to make the honor roll or compete in contests—do it now. The success of a Senior year is built on a successful first and second year.

Contest Winners

Four formal scholastic contests were sponsored by the Academy in which a total of 150 boys participated. The Elocution winners were: Fettig—gold medal; Conforti—silver medal. In poetry: McGovern—first prize; Schroeder—second prize. Short Story: Linehan—gold medal; Fischer—silver medal. Essay: Evans—gold medal; Martin—silver medal.

Activities

Academy Spirit

WE'VE heard that gold is where we find it. We know that a home is what we make it. Columbia Academy furnishes for its students a home-like atmosphere—the product of a priestly understanding applied in contacts between professor and pupil, in patient personal-study courses, in extensive athletic schedules, in forwarding the student's best interests—which instills into the student golden knowledge and habits of loyalty, of Catholic ethics, of friendship with Christ, of vigorous health. Human, home-like interest has made the Academy a gold mine for the physical, mental, and spiritual education of Catholic youth.

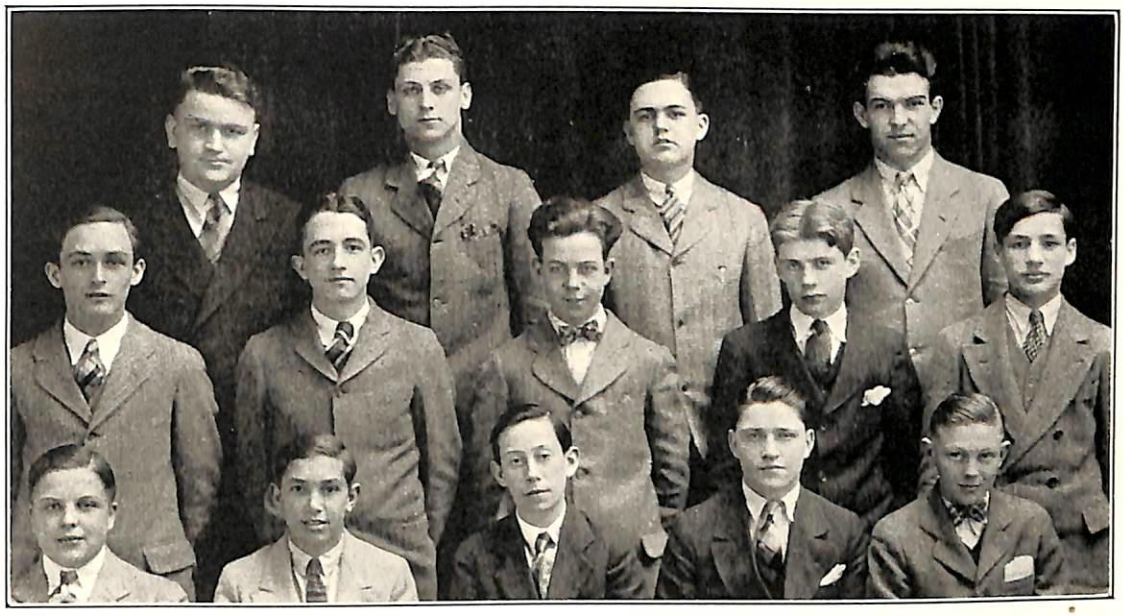

Left to themselves, meeting only in classrooms, boys, at the age when old and sage guidance and help of home is needed, tend toward the path of listlessness and backwardness, toward a stationary and routine-like existence. Our Columbia plan has flowered with achievement. Student initiative has been cultivated, has prospered. This year has welcomed, as an outgrowth of personal interest, an American History Club, which attempts to bring the boys closer together and to give them an opportunity for both historical research and profitable amusement. The new choral society purports to help the student acquire a taste for good music, a knowledge of Catholic services and cultured refrains. Former years saw the innovation of present institutions—the Cee-Ay, our news sheet; the Kodak Club; a distinct Academy section in the Purgold; and numerous mission projects.

Well may we be proud of our Columbia spirit. It has earned us many honors. Contest winners in our classes have continued to climb, to gain new laurels for self and school. Well-organized athletic supervision and coaching have resulted repeatedly in champion or undefeated teams in the major sports. The result of individual attention in the minor leagues has given to the Academy and the College creditable athletes.

Home-like training and understanding have made the Academy an activity-school and a character building school which contributes fit men for both Church and State.

The American History Club

IN October, 1927, the American History Club was organized, primarily to create in the students an appreciation for American History, and secondarily to afford diversion and amusement. The task of organizing fell upon the executive staff, composed of: Joseph Meinert, Joseph Holbach, Paul O'Neill, Ed. Linehan, Richard Kolck, James McGuinn, John Evans, Joseph Kirk, John Collins, and Father Kessler, the club moderator. Membership in the club demanded satisfactory class work, and interest in American History. An orchestra was gotten together, which after a successful debut, added spice to the regular meetings.

At every gathering a different student acted as chairman, thus giving many members valuable experience in parliamentary law. Historical papers, impersonations, and readings were delivered regularly by members, and on various occasions, outside speakers favored the club with lectures. Usually four or five reels of historical movies added to the interest of the meetings.

On February 9th and 11th, the club presented the four act play Secret Service. The cast was made up of: Kelzer, Newhouse, Theobald, O'Neill, Crowley, Meinert, Higgins, Evans, Schmitz, Graham, and Frommelt.

Perhaps the most lasting phase of the club's labors is represented in its museum. Many rare and ancient articles: Manuscripts, relics, fossils, and rock formations are among the specimens of interest, which go to make up the collection.

The Kodak Club

IN October, 1926, Al. Phillip's suggestion of a Kodak Club was realized through the assistance of the present faculty advisor, the Rev. L. B. Striegel. The work of developing and printing began in a little room beneath the stairs on the ground floor with practically no equipment. This organization, now known as the Cee-Ay Kodak Club held this two-fold purpose: to furnish suitable snapshots for the Academy Purgold and to cultivate in its members an appreciation of the photographic art. Two charter members and officers to whom the club is indebted are Al Phillip and Al Lorenz of the class of '28.

The men elected to pilot the destinies of the club for 1927-1928 were: Al Phillip, president, J. Theobald, vice-president, Geo. Doyle, secretary and treasurer, with Tangney, Crowley, Howard, and Lyons as developers. That these men were wisely chosen is certain from their work in the present Purgold, and the splendid specimens entered in the various contests which won high approval from the judges, Messrs. Zedja and Tasker. The prize winning Kodakers were Phillip, Lorenz, Casey, Van den Dorpe, Lyons, and Marr.

The value of such a club to the school was demonstrated this year in its co-operation with the athletic department in its advertising program.

Today the Kodak Club has its own room, and some valuable equipment including a new graflex. The spirit of Old St. Joe, that of self-sacrificing service which permeates its members augers much for the future success of the club.

The Cee-Ay

"The Cee-Ay is among the newsiest papers received by the Magnavox (St. Mel's High School, Chicago, Illinois). The editorials are full of thought, are brief and to the point."

This is but one of the favorable comments made upon our school paper by exchanges. The news articles show a keen grasp of the essentials of journalism, and the editorials precision of thought.

It is strictly a student publication. Sprung from the suggestion of a student, the Cee-Ay has always recorded in an interesting manner the thoughts, life, and activities of the students. It furnishes a medium through which they may give expression to their literary talents. The editorial staff for the Academy Purgold is selected from the Cee-Ay staff in recognition for faithful work and unusual ability.

The paper is read with pleasure in many schools throughout this country and in a few foreign lands. The student body points with pride to the editorial staff of this year. It includes: Martin, Linehan, Meinert, Cassidy, Krieser, Lorenz, Farnan, D. Kress, Evans, B. Nash, Kolck, O'Neill, Newhouse, Willging, Kearns, J. Palen, Kerper, and Lyons. The typing work was well well handled by Dixon, Fabish, and Weidenfeller. To this wide-awake staff, directed by such editors-in-chief as Martin, Linehan, Meinert, and Kress, and inspired by their energetic faculty advisor, Father Churchill, is due the greatest portion of the praise for placing the Cee-Ay among the very best of high school papers.

The Choral Club

THE Academy Choral Society was established with the four fold purpose of offering an opportunity: to gain a simple knowledge of music; to develop and inspire an appreciation for the cultural; to train the young voices in preparation for the College vested Choir; and to stimulate an interest in music as a healthful and pleasant pastime.

During the course of the year the Society engaged the attention of eighty members who practiced semi-weekly under the direction of Father Kelly. The Society was divided into two sections—the Day Student and the Boarder. The photo above depicts the Day Student contingent and the Boarder division is pictured on the following page. The division was made to insure greater efficiency, more individual attention, and to arouse wholesome competition.

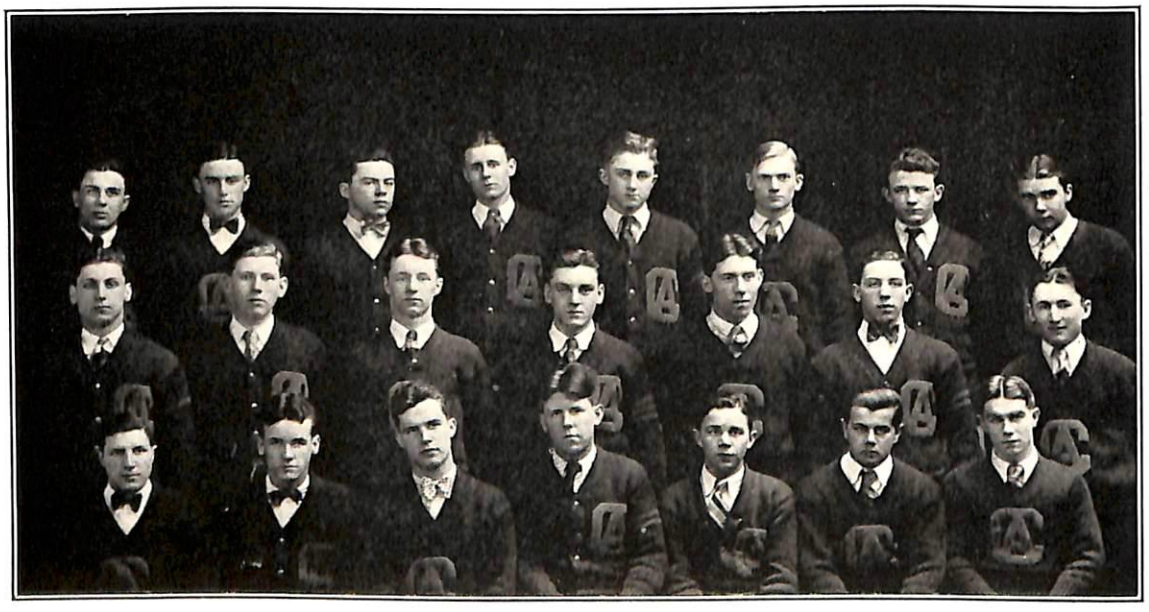

The Day Student Society made its first formal appearance at Saint Raphael's Cathedral Christmas when they sang for two Masses. After the intervention of a few practice periods they again sang at the ceremonies of the Forty Hours of Devotion. During the year the two sections of the Society alternated in singing the weekly devotions in the Chapel. Most of the year was devoted to a study of the Mass of the Angels and folk songs were sung for variation. Father Kelly feels that his purpose has been realized in part at least because occasionally students gatherings in the corridors and on the campus were enlivened by the songsters' melodies.

The Service Honor Roll

Human gratitude is a noble virtue, which is in evidence among the Academy students. The service honor roll gives public recognition to the sacristans, prayer leader, organist, student manager, those who furnished cars for the athletic trips, and the prominent workers in various organizations and all who made a special sacrifice of their time, thought and energy to advance Academy activities. Let us hope that this spirit will actuate not only some but every student of the Academy.

Athletics

Academy Athletic Department

FATHER PATNODE

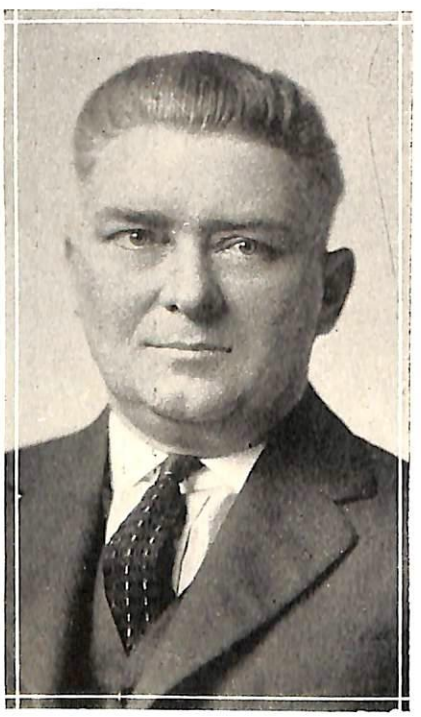

The year 1927-1928 added new laurels to the crown of the Academy Athletic regime. More than ever was the full importance of intra-mural sports demonstrated, and the well-worked-out programs in foot-ball, basketball, diamond ball, track, and tennis are a standing tribute to the guiding hands behind them. The traditional Academy policy of athletics for the many and not the few, as a character as well as a body builder, was emphasized in every sporting activity. Some 250 students actually took part in athletics during the year.

Father J. I. Patnode, working tirelessly as athletic manager, was the faithful and energetic guide who arranged the schedules for the Gubs and for the intramural leagues. It was his quiet work that made it possible for the Academy to engage in contests with well known teams, and spread the reputation of the Academy to schools far afield. The Academy athletic stock will continue to soar, we are confident, as long as Father Patnode is manager.

Coach John Cretzmeyer, as athletic director, was responsible for an undefeated football team, a championship basketball five, and a real track team. The sportsmanship, fair play, loyalty, and stick-to-it-iveness evidenced by the members of these teams is a tribute to the Academy coach system. Coach Cretzmeyer and Father Daniel Coyne, his assistant, who labored so unselfishly to develop fully their proteges, accomplished wonderful results.

The work of Father Long and of "Scoop" Wilhelm, sports editor of the Telegraph-Herald, has built up this year a publicity program second to none. Thanks to their efforts, Columbia Academy athletics have been in the limelight, and our fame has been spread far and wide. We congratulate and thank them both.

Capt. P. Gehrig

COACH John Cretzmeyer's Academy team of 1927, led by Captain Paul Gehrig and built around a nucleus of eight lettermen, proved to be one of the greatest elevens he has ever turned out. Every game on a difficult schedule was won by a substantial margin, and 338 points were rolled up, to our opponents' 28. The team had two big features: the great reserve strength in the squad, and the "Minutemen" backfield, comprised of Gehrig, McGuinn, Barkley and Kolfenbach.

The Academy team, newly christened the "Gubs," after Coach Cretzmeyer's expression, romped off with the opening game, with Immaculate Conception High School of Cedar Rapids, 43-0, on Loras Field, Sept. 30. The backfield shone, and the reserves gave a good account of themselves in the second half.

On October 8, the boys upset Savanna High School on the Illinoisans' home field, 27-7. The line helped the Minutemen to run wild. A week later, October 15, the Purple and Gold conquered Wayland Academy of Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, in a gridiron classic on Loras Field, 25-12. McGuinn and Kolfenback starred on offense, while McParland, Sims and Stemm were towers of strength in the line.

Stockton High School was given a thorough trimming on their home field, October 22, when the Gubs swept through to an 86-0 victory. Kolfenbach and Hamsmith played well for the regulars, while Toner, Gerber and Runde, the reserves, played a brilliant game in the second half. On October 29, the Gubs journeyed to Galena and dumped the High School eleven by a 26-0 count. McGuinn's runs featured while the line showed steadiness and strength.

On Loras Field, November 5, the Academy overcame Campion Academy, our old rival, 20 to 7. Kolfenbach and Gehrig were the big factors in a rally which nullified Campion's half time lead of 7-6.

The final home game resulted in another scalp for Columbia, this time that of St. Thomas High School of Rockford, by a 93-0 score on November 19. Holbach, McParland, Sims and Conforti shone in the line, and, the "Minutemen" provided the winning punch. The reserves also showed good form.

On Thanksgiving Day, the Purple and Gold took the measure of St. Ambrose Academy at Davenport by the count of 20-0, for the eighth consecutive win. The down-river boys outplayed the Gubs in the first half, but were unable to stem the tide in the final quarters. This game proved to be the last one for nine of the eleven regulars.

G. Schmitz, Student Manager

THE 1927 intra-mural football season was one of genuine interest for both participants and spectators. It revealed such well coached material that even the master mind of the Gubs took notice. In the two leagues, the Senior and Junior, 83 warriors received monograms.

The senior league composed of the Rustlers (boarders) and the Dodgers (day-pupils) fought spiritedly and displayed some classy football. The Rustlers walked away with the first two games, but Father Long's Dodgers, recovering, fought their way to 2 victories. In the rubber Father Coyne's Rustlers carried off the bacon 12-7 and won the championship. Those awarded monograms were: Rustlers: Capt. Gossman, Tornai, Schares, Collins, Specht, Tangney, Leick, Finley, Becker, O'Neill, Manternach, McCauley, Schmitz, Kelly, Engler, McDermott. Dodgers: Capt. Mullin, J. Graham, Cassidy, Schwartz, McMahon, Peryon, Capesius, T. Kies, Ernsdorff, Krocheski, Quinlan, Trexler, Schroeder, R. Ziepprecht, Havlik, Bennett, Gallagher, Crimmins.

The Teenie Weenies (boarders) beginning with a number of vets and skillfully trained by the able mentor, Father Churchill marched with ease to the Junior championship. Under Father Duggan's tutelage, the Midgets (day-pupils) were runners up for the minor cup. The Pigmies, made up entirely of green material, were trained by Professor Fagan. In spite of the inexperience they put up a great fight. The monogram winners in this league were:

Teenie Weenies: Capt. Phillip, Russ Lawson, R. Barkley, R. Nash, Krebs, Henry, Crowley, Marr, Fabish, La Fond, Gonner, Costello, Farrell, Shanahan, Byrnes, Ford, Dixon, Doherty, Maretich, Dick Lawson.

Midgets: Capt. Pitzen, Majerus, Moran, Lowe, R. Kelly, H. Kies, Kane, Petry, Plass, Fitzpatrick, King, Fortmann, Bahl, Correll, Holz.

Pigmies: Capt. Weitz, Kearney, W. Clarke, Saunders, Joe Graham, Birkett, Powers, Ellwanger, B.O'Brien, Fairfield, Chevalier, Beckius, Kermit Eulberg, I. Frye.

To stimulate further interest and keener rivalry for the future an all star team was picked which received a special write-up in the Cee-Ay, while the champion teams were awarded bronze footballs. Some of the senior league stars are destined to be members of the 1928 Gubs.

Intramural Basketball

The Athletic "developer" of the Gubs experienced one of its most successful turns in the intra-mural basketball series of 1928. A major and a minor league made up of 6 teams apiece played a schedule of 30 games each, in which 104 boys participated. Seymour, Kreiser, Sims, Mullin, and Gerber ably captained by Emmet Kelley captured major honors under the banner of 4L. Minor honors went to Barkley assisted by Pauley, Gonner, Boyd, Fortman, Dea and Dixon who fought for 1B. 4L defeated 1B, 12-7, for the hall championship. The high point man of both leagues was Barkley.

The Major all star choice was: Kies, Gerber, Sherman, Kelley, and Coffey: The minor: Barkley, Pitzen, Schroeder, Nash, and Dea. A. JAEGER

Basketball Season

Capt. Kolfenbach

WITH five veterans, Coach Cretzmeyer again built up a winning cage team. Through the aid of Fathers Coyne, assistant coach, and Long, publicity man, the "Gubs" succeeded in winning thirteen out of sixteen games. "Eddie" Kolfenbach replaced "June" McGuinn as Captain in the middle of the season, due to the latter's departure from school. The choice of Kolfenbach was a wise one, as the results show. In their first game, the "Gubs" disposed of Galena, 25-14. Two days later I. C. of Cedar Rapids was scalped, 25-12. In these first two encounters the entire squad displayed their wares. The next evening, our basketeers trounced Platteville, 21-13.

In the first St. Ambrose game, Schwartz, and Kolfenbach led the scoring, while Barkley was a tower of defense; score, 14-11. The "Gubs" next downed Maquoketa Junior College, 33-25. Schwartz was outstanding. To take its sixth straight win, the Academy doubled Savana, 28-14. Barkley's floorwork featured. Under the new captain, the boys defeated St. Thomas 28-13. Captain Kolfenbach scintillated. Playing his first game, Tom Knox looped four, to aid in the score of 35 for the Academy and 14 for St. Wenceslaus. Campion, our ancient rival, was the ninth straight victim. Kenline and Conforti played well. Score, 19-10. After a snowy journey, the Academy bowed to St. Thomas at Rockford, 13-10. Schwartz looked best. Then St. Wenceslaus and I. C. were overwhelmed at Cedar Rapids 24-17 and 37-8 respectively. Everybody hit the bucket. At Davenport St. Ambrose socked us on the chin 26-17. Schwartz led the scoring. Up at Prairie du Chien, the C. A. of Dubuque scalped the C. A. of that city, 21-16. Kolfenbach made seven free throws. Maquoketa received their expected defeat 32-15. Schwartz looped too many.

Capt.-elect Sheehan

Meeting St. Xavier, of Louisville, Kentucky, in the Loyola Tournament, the "Gubs" bowed to the team that took third place, 26-15. Such was our defense that the decisive baskets were made from the center of the floor.

Ed. Sheehan as captain-elect has a job worthy of a man. It is to lead the 1929 team to a record equal to that set by the "Gubs" of this year. AL. LORENZ.

Academy Track

VICTORIOUS in all meets last year (1927), the Columbia Academy trackmen, led by Captain Clemes, amased 222½ points as compared with their opponents' 157 5/6. The most prominent victims were St. Ambrose, Campion, and Platteville High. The high point man was none other than Geo. Barkley, who won 8 firsts and who garnered 51 points. As runners-up we have Eddie Kolfenbach and "June" McGuinn, both three letter men, while Captain-elect Runde was undefeated in the 440. These point-getters were excellently aided by Kaye, Wurst, and McKenna. The relay team, composed of McGuinn, Kolfenbach, Runde, and Barkley was undefeated.

The 1928 team piloted by Louis Runde, although it has a high standard to uphold gives us no reason for worry. 'Tis true the loss of Barkley and McGuinn will be felt, but Sandke and Potthoff are speed boys. Runde and Kolfenbach are better than ever this year, while O'Neill, a miler, and Baldus, a half miler and weight man, are real finds. Gehrig and McParland will do themselves proud in the strong man specialties, while Holbach ought to do something in the high hurdles.

Capt. Runde has a difficult schedule for his team mates. A dual meet with Galena High on May 8th: a triangular affair with Platteville and Galena High: The Campion, St. Ambrose, Columbia meet, and the Mississippi Valley Catholic High School meet. The 1928 team is well balanced: it has at least one or two point getters for each event.

Inter-Class Track

In the 1928 inter-class track meet the Seniors were victorious with a total of 96 points. The third year men were next with 16½ points. Only 12 points were earned by the first and second Acs acting as a unit. (But do you remember last year?). Kolfenbach was high with 26 points, and Runde second with 14. The following represents the winners in order of finish:

The Tennis Tournament

Thirty-two participated in this event. Bill Leary, of Salt Lake, Utah, fought his way up to the Academy championship. A team composed of Leary, E. Kelly, Kenline and Flanagan will meet Campion here on the 19th and there on the 30th. Interest was keen this year in watching the young champion "come through."

Inter-Class Diamond Ball

Although this is the first year that diamond ball leagues have been formed, interest has been decidedly greater than was shown in the ball leagues of former years. The Major league was composed of six teams and the minor of seven. 3A captained by Ralph Brede copped the major championship, while staunch Baldus and his 2A outfit had it their way in the minor. One hundred and forty three boys saw action in these leagues.

Fourth Annual Archdiocesan Basketball Tourney

THE Fourth Annual Archdiocesan Basketball Tournament held in Loras Gymnasium, Columbia College, on March 7-8-9, proved a huge success. Columbia spared neither time nor expense in her hospitality to her guests. In fact, quite contrary to the custom in such tournaments, the Columbia Academy team, out of courtesy to its guests refrained from participation.

Eighteen teams competed in this tournament. This marked a real increase in numbers, but not less in quality. The public interest waxed strong, as was evidenced by the large crowds that filled the gym for the evening games.

The visiting teams expressed their deep gratitude to Columbia for her warm hospitality. The costly trophies, the excellent housing facilities, the "eats" and the snappy way in which the schedules were run are a great tribute to the efficiency of Dr. Wolfe, Professor Heitkamp, and the master hand behind the screen, Father Patnode.

The winner of the 1928 tourney was St. Wenceslaus High of Cedar Rapids, who crushed St. Xavier High of Dyersville 26-9 in the finals. The games were all very close. Each match was a gruelling contest wherein the better team asserted itself only with obvious difficulty. Many games were upsets: St. Patrick's of Cedar Rapids, the defending champs, were downed early in the tournament, while the unheralded St. Mary's of Dubuque upset St. Joseph's of Mason City, the 1927 runners-up, in the first round.

The teams who participated were: St. Wenceslaus of Cedar Rapids, St. Xavier of Dyersville, Sacred Heart of Waterloo, St. Joseph's of Elkader, Sacred Heart of Monticello, Immaculate Conception of Cedar Rapids, St. Mary's of Waterloo, St. Patrick's of Dougherty, St. Mary's of Dubuque, St. Patrick's of Cedar Rapids, Sacred Heart of Eagle Grove, St. John's of Ryan, St. Joseph's of Mason City, St. Martin's of Cascade, Immaculate Conception of Charles City, Our Lady of Victory of Waterloo, St. Mary's of Guttenburg and St. John's of Independence.

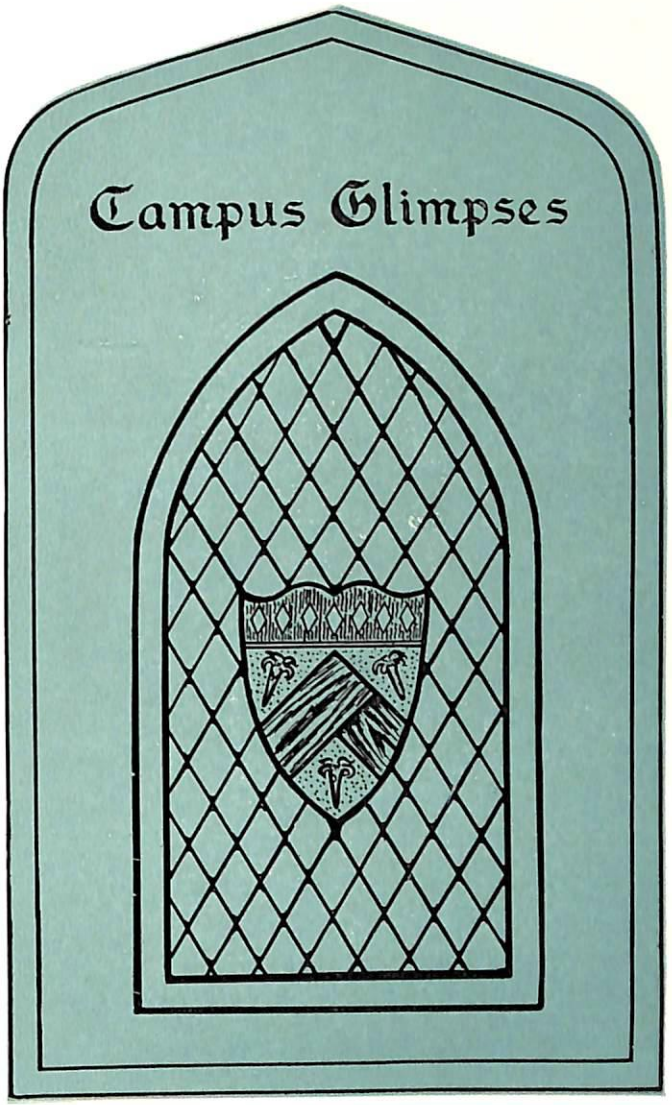

St. Wenceslaus of Cedar Rapids won the tourney with St. Xavier of Dyersville as runners-up. Sacred Heart of Waterloo were the winners of the consolation tournament.

Three all-tournament teams were picked. First team choices were: Frommelt (Guttenburg), and Pettinger (Dyersville), forwards; Larkin (St. Patrick's), center; Ryan (St. Mary's, Dubuque) and Zacher (St. Wenceslaus), guards. On the second team were chosen: Nolan (I. C., Cedar Rapids) and Locher (Monticello), forwards; Dougherty (Dougherty), center; Balik (St. Wenceslaus, Cedar Rapids) and Lynch (I. C., Charles City), guards. Third team members were: McKevitt (Sacred Heart, Waterloo) and Handley (St. Patrick's Cedar Rapids), forwards; Schimmer (Monticello), center; Dunn (Monticello) and Wilson (O. L. V. A., Waterloo), guards.

Your school is a monument to education--in like manner this store is a monument to the mercantile industry and the growth of both enterprises may be attributed to the loyalty of the Community by which they are surrounded.

Education has made the world what it is today and business has played a very important part in making higher education possible. Each in a sphere of its own, yet so inseparable that one without the other would crumble--

"Useless each without the other."
